EDGAR HONEY MEETS DEATH BY DROWNING

Five Young Men Were Boating in a Pond Near East Point.

WERE THROWN INTO WATER WHEN BOAT TURNED OVER

M. K. Wright, Who Was on the Bank, Went to the Rescue of Two Honey Brothers, and Brought Them to Banks of Pond.

Edgar Honey, a young white man, eighteen years old, living near the Exposition cotton mills, at 12 Circle street, was drowned yesterday shortly after noon in a pond at East Point, known as Hatcock pond, while in bathing with several other young men, and W. P. Honey, his brother, had a narrow escape from the same fate.

Honey and four other young men, ranging in age from eighteen to twenty-four years, all of whom lived near the mills, went out on the pond in an ordinary skiff about 12 o'clock. The pond, which was comparatively small and not deep, was made by means of a dam and no danger was feared by the young men.

After they had been rowing about for a short time one of the young men, who was in a bathing suit, told the others in the boat of his intention to take a plunge in the pond and quickly dived overboard. In some manner, unexplained by the witnesses to the drowning of young Honey, the boat was overturned and Honey and the rest thrown in the water. W. P. Honey, his brother, was also seen struggling for life in the water.

Wright Goes to Rescue.

M. K. Wright, a young man, who was preparing to dive into the pond from the banks, saw the overturning of the boat and without a minute's hesitation, dived into the water. He succeeded in helping W. P. Honey to the shore and returned for his brother Edgar. The latter was not in sight and Wright boldly plunged beneath the surface. He secured hold of the drowning man and started to rise to the surface. The overturned boat drifting to the spot over Wright and his helpless burden caused the ascent to the open air to be delayed and Wright struggled desperately to rise.

Wright shortly after reached the surface of the pond and brought Honey to the banks. Persons who had witnessed the accident were in the meantime working on W. P. Honey, trying to bring him to consciousness and finally they succeeded. Efforts to resuscitate Edgar P. Honey failed and the young man died a few minutes later.

Funeral Arrangements.

The body was removed to the undertaking establishment of A. C. Hemperley for preparation for burial yesterday afternoon. This morning at 8:30 o'clock the body will be taken to Smyrna, Ga., for funeral and interment.

Coroner Thompson was called to East Point, and after questioning the witnesses issued a certificate of death by drowning, and gave permission to relatives to remove the body to the young man's home.

After Honey's death the people in the neighborhood of the pond learned of the drowning and destroyed the dam, which afforded a sufficient depth for swimming, and allowed the water to run off into the small stream nearby.

MITCHELL HAS BEEN CAPTURED.

Charged With Attempted Assault on Wife's Sister.

Statesboro, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—Charged with attempting to assault his wife's sister, a Miss Rushing, in this county a few months ago, Pratt Mitchell, a young white man, is now locked in the Bulloch county jail awaiting trial in the superior court.

Since the alleged attempt was charged, Mitchell has been at large. Sheriff Kendrick, learning that he was in the neighborhood of McRae, gave the sheriff of Telfair county a description of him and requested that he be on the lookout. A few days ago Sheriff Kendrick received a communication from the sheriff of Telfair county that Mitchell had been captured and he at once left for McRae. He returned last night with him, and he does not deny that he is Mitchell, but denies that he ever made an attempt to assault his wife's sister.

Young Man Was Injured.

Macon, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—Cleveland Goodwin, a young white man residing in South Macon, suffered a painful accident as he left a street car on Fourth street late last night. His foot was caught between the car steps and a platform and was mashed so that he was taken to the city hospital for treatment. He escaped with some slight bruises, which proved painful but will not necessitate the loss of the limb.

Mock Duck Is Arrested.

Boston, August 4.—Mock Duck, said to be one of the leaders of the Hip-Sing Tong, was arrested in Quincy today and locked up here on a charge of being concerned in the fatal shooting in Chinatown on Friday night, when three members of the On Leong Tong, another Chinese secret society, were killed.

TWELVE MORE DAYS AND SESSION ENDS

General Tax Act Will Be Special Order Before House This Morning.

NOT ONE GENERAL ACT HAS YET BECOME LAW

With General Tax Act, Appropriation Bill, and Hall Anti-Pass Measure as Special Orders, House Will Be Busy for Two Weeks.

When the house meets this morning at 10 o'clock the beginning of the end of the fifty-day session will have begun, for only twelve more days remain, including two Saturday short sessions. Then the time limit expires and adjournment "sine die" is at hand.

Within that space of time must be crowded all important legislation, save the prohibition measure, which is the only general act passed, and that bill has not as yet become a law through gubernatorial signature.

Today the general tax act comes up as a special order, and this voluminous measure is, by reason of its importance, a special order at all times, and takes precedence over all business.

A single reading of the bill requires an hour and ten minutes, and when it is considered that it is read by sections, discussed in the same manner and adopted in that way, with its manifold amendments, the time taken to pass upon it can be better imagined than prophesied. It is believed that it will require the major portion of this week, and may run into next week.

Following this bill, the general appropriation bill, which has not yet been reported back to the house by the appropriation committee, will have to be taken up and acted upon.

This, too, by reason of its importance is a special order measure, and has precedence over all other measures.

It must be acted upon by sections, each of which is the subject of debate, and in addition must be reported upon by the house sitting as a committee of the whole, for the bill involves an appropriation, and there is added a roll call of the aye and nay vote, on the entire bill and oftentimes on disputed sections.

This bill, too, will probably require four days or longer for consideration and passage.

Hall's Anti Pass Bill.

With the anti-pass bill by Mr. Hall of Bibb and the committee substitute, set for a special and continuous order for Tuesday, immediately following the reading of the journal, there seems to be little other legislation possible for this week and a major portion of next week.

Chairman Wise had the general tax act read a second time in the house on Saturday, so that measure is ready for the house this morning, and will probably be considered the first thing.

There are only a few slight changes in the tax bill as reported to the house this year from that measure of two years ago. The taxes assessed with the rental of the state road and the hire from the leased convicts bring the state's revenue up to about $4,750,000 for the year 1908 and 1909.

This is an increase of about $75,000 over the income for this and last year, despite the curtailment of the liquor licenses and the bucket shop tax, partially attributable to appreciation in the value of property and partially to the proposed increased tax rate from four and eighty one-hundredths mills to the full constitutional rate of a flat 5 mills basis.

The changes in the tax act are very minor from those of previous years.

The prohibition act, of course, eliminated that section of the measure. This takes away all references to retail and wholesale liquor stores, dispensaries and social clubs.

The bucket shop clause is also eliminated.

There is inserted a clause which taxes each arm of the thousands of soda-water fountains in the state $5 annually, and from this source it is expected to raise at least $25,000.

The moving picture shows of the state, and it is estimated there is close on to 1,000 in operation, are to be taxed $5 a month each, and from this source an additional $25,000 is expected.

Other than these departures, however, the changes are minor, if any.

A long and tedious debate, though, is expected on these.

With the tax rate being advanced, and

HOPELESS MAN BLOWS OFF HEAD

Death Had No Terrors for Prof. Baumann, of Texas.

PUT PISTOL IN HIS MOUTH

Top of His Head Blown Off by a Bullet—He Left Note Stating "To Man Who Has Lost All Hope and Is Suffering Death Has No Terrors."

New York, August 4.—Professor F. Arnold B. Baumann, 56 years old, of New Braunfels, Comal county, Texas, killed himself in his room in Swet's hotel today. He placed the muzzle of a heavy single-barreled pistol in his mouth as he sat in front of a mirror and blew the top of his head off.

Professor Baumann, a man of distinguished appearance, arrived here Friday on his way to Germany to take a cure for rheumatism. Since his arrival he had been able scarcely to leave his room. Among his effects was found the following letter signed by Adolph Stein, judge of Comal county, Texas:

"To Whom It May Concern:

"This is to certify that F. Arnold B. Baumann has taught school successfully in Comal county, Tex., since the year 1893. He proved to be a most efficient teacher, possessed of high education. He stands in a high esteem among his colleagues, and his many friends, who, with regret, see him depart from American soil."

On the back of this letter Professor Baumann had written in lead pencil:

"To a man who has lost all hope, who is suffering fearful pains, death has no terrors. No one will claim my body. I stand alone.

"F. A. ARNOLD BAUMANN."

Baumann Well Known in Texas.

New Braunfels, Tex., August 4.—Professor F. A. Baumann, who committed suicide in New York today, has been a resident of this county during the past fifteen years. He has taught in various schools near here, and has been employed in the New Braunfels schools the past three years, which position he resigned at the recent teachers' election.

Professor Baumann left New Braunfels about three weeks ago, with the intention of visiting his old home in Bavaria, Germany, where he has not been for the past twenty-five years.

It is said that for some time prior to his leaving he appeared very despondent.

RURAL MAIL CARRIER KILLED.

Was Sworn in as Deputy Marshal. Killed by Negro.

Hopkinsville, Ky., August 4.—M. M. Martin, aged 35, a popular citizen of Gracey, and a rural mail carrier, was killed Saturday night by Duke Lewis, a negro.

Martin had been sworn in as a deputy marshal. He saw Lewis acting in a suspicious manner, and asked his business. Without answering, the negro drew a pistol and shot Martin through the heart. The negro escaped.

LIGHTNING FIRES LARGE PLANT.

Over $100,000 Damage Was Done Armour Plant.

Jacksonville, Fla., August 4.—Lightning struck and set fire to the large fertilizer manufacturing plant of the Armour Fertilizer Company in this city at 1 o'clock this afternoon and completely destroyed the building, which was valued at $80,000, and damaged the stock of fertilizer and fertilizer material therein to the extent of $25,000.

Roses and Cheers for Haywood.

Leadville, Colo., August 4.—William D. Haywood, secretary of the Western Federation of Miners, recently acquitted at Boise, passed through Malta Junction, en route from Salt Lake City to Denver, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. A large representation of the local lodge of the federation was present to congratulate their leader. He was showered with roses and cheers as he stepped to the platform during the short interval the train remained at the junction.

3 YOUNG MEN FATALLY HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Son of Gage Tarbell, Edward Woodeson and William Cutchings the Victims.

"I'M GLAD," SAID TARBELL, "I'M DONE WITH AUTOS"

Forty Horse-Power Machine Was Struck by Surface Car and Dashed to Fragments Against Elevated Railroad Pillar.

New York, August 4.—Three well-known young men were frightfully, if not fatally, injured today when their automobile was struck by a surface car, and after being shoved along for a distance of 30 feet, was smashed to fragments against an elevated railroad pillar.

The victims are: Swift Tarbell, son of Gage E. Tarbell, who was formerly a vice president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society; Edward L. Woodson and William Cutching.

Tarbell has a broken leg, a dislocated shoulder, gasoline burns on the face and body, and is black with bruises. His companions suffered bruises, and Cutching also had a broken leg, a shoulder dislocated, and what appeared to be a fracture of the skull. Woodson was the most fortunate of the three, but is badly off through the shock.

"Glad of It, Said Tarbell.

On the way to Bellevue hospital, where the injured were taken, young Tarbell, who owned and drove the car, regained his senses and inquired whether the machine had been ruined. Upon being told that it had been, he commented:

"Glad of it. I'll never ride in an automobile again."

The party was bound for Garden City, L. I., where the three were to meet the elder Tarbell. Their 40-horsepower machine was coming down the incline on West Thirty-sixth street at fair speed, when at the junction a Third avenue surface car crossed their path. The automobilists say that the street car was running beyond easy control, while others said that Tarbell attempted to beat out the trolley at the crossing.

Car Struck Auto Squarely.

The car struck the automobile squarely and jammed it against the railway pillar with such force that the car was derailed, the automobile torn to pieces and its occupants held fast in the wreck. Cutching was thrown under the surface car between the trucks and wedged between the brake beam and pavement. Had the rear truck moved a few inches further they would have cut him in two. Tarbell was caught between the running board of the car and one side of the wrecked machine. His broken leg had been pushed through the spokes of a wheel. Woodeson was pinioned under the trolley's forward trucks. It was necessary to raise the passenger car before the injured men could be taken out. All were unconscious.

Killed While Racing Auto.

Bridgeport, Conn., August 4.—By the bursting of a tire on an automobile this afternoon as it was racing through Southport, Peter Henderer was killed and William Mallory was badly bruised.

GERMAN PILOT WAS RELEASED.

Had Been Arrested in Connection With Steamer Collision.

Tampico, Mexico, August 4.—As the result of investigation into the recent collision between the national steamer Puebla and the Hamburg-American liner Foresck, in which the latter rammed the former, the pilot in charge of the German ship, who was first arrested, has been released and Captain Max Divern, of the Foresck, arrested.

An effort was made to have Divern released on bail, but the request was refused on the ground that the German captain has no fixed residence in this country.

ASSAULTS ON WOMEN STIR PEOPLE TO FURY

HE USED SHOTGUN TO COERCE GIRL

But Pretty Miss Potter Is Saved by Her Mother.

POSSE CHASES ASSAILANT

If Ford, Who Attempted to Dishonor Preacher's Daughter Is Caught, It Is Feared That He Will Be Lynched. Ford Is Married Man.

Smithville, Tenn., August 4.—A posse is scouring the twenty-first district of Dekalb county tonight in search of James D. Ford, charged with an attempted assault upon Miss Dolly Potter, the pretty 16-year-old daughter of Rev. L. T. Potter, this afternoon.

Miss Potter started with her mother to a spring used by the family, the mother stopping on the way and the daughter going alone. Ford, a young married man, was at the spring, and asked the girl to go with him, entreating her to do so, it is said, when she refused.

Finally, it is alleged, he displayed a double-barreled shotgun, commanding her to accompany him, aiming the gun at her. Mrs. Potter heard the sound of excited voices, and joined the daughter, Ford, it is said, decamping on her approach.

Walter Sanders promptly rode to Smithville and swore out a warrant for Ford, which four deputy sheriffs and a posse at once started out to serve. It is the desire of the Potter family that the law takes its course, but it is believed that if Ford is taken he will be lynched.

GOVERNMENT AND THE TRUSTS.

Important Questions to Be Discussed at National Conference.

New York, August 4.—Important questions affecting the relations between state and national governments and corporations now so prominently before the public in connection with the fine of $29,240,000 imposed upon the Standard Oil Company of Indiana by Judge Landis and the conflict between state authorities and the federal judiciary in the railroad cases in North Carolina will be discussed at a national conference on combinations and trusts to be held in Chicago October 22, 23, 24 and 25.

The conference will be held under the auspices of the National Civic Federation. It was announced at the headquarters of the federation today that forty-one governors of states and the commissioner of the District of Columbia have appointed delegates to attend the meeting. A number of governors have signified their intention of attending the conference in person. Members of the interstate commerce commission and of the committee on interstate commerce of the senate and house will participate. Delegates also will be named by various national organizations.

The program for the conference will include the division of power under the constitution between nation and state; whether there should be national corporations as well as state; provisions looking for the protection of stockholders as well as fair dealing with the public, and the just and practical limits of restriction and regulation by the national and state governments.

TO HOIST THE BRITISH FLAG?

Nothing Heard of Reported Expeditions of Canadians.

Washington, D. C., August 4.—No advices have been received at the state department concerning the reported expedition of several Canadians, led by Captain S. C. Young, for Isle Royale, in Lake Superior, with the intention of hoisting the British flag on the island. According to officials of the state department, there has never been any question between Canada and the United States as to the United States' ownership of the island. Its ownership was settled by the treaty of Ghent. At the state department here, it is thought Captain Young's move is a filibustering one.

"It's No Affair of Mine," Said Frick.

New York, August 4.—Well in body and spirits, content with the present and optimistic of the future, H. C. Frick, the steel magnate, returned today from a pleasure trip in England, France and Germany. Mr. Frick's only comment on the fine given the Standard Oil company was, "It's no affair of mine." He declined, to comment on financial matters.

Lynching Spirit Rife in New York Owing to Many Outrages.

THREE ACCUSED MEN ARE ROUGHLY HANDLED

One of Them Will Probably Die from Injuries Inflicted by the Mob—Another Murderous Assault on Woman Is Recorded.

New York, August 4.—Another murderous assault was added tonight to the police record of recent crimes against defenseless women and girls. Tonight's victim was Miss Ellen Bulger, a woman of middle age, who was attacked in her apartments in the Bronx, cruelly beaten, and left in a helpless state. The woman was removed to a hospital, where it was found that her skull had apparently been fractured, her face and hands lacerated, and her body otherwise bruised. There was evidence that the woman had made a courageous fight. From what the police were able to learn from her, she was surprised by a smooth-faced stranger, perhaps forty years of age. He was coatless, and wore an outing shirt and dark trousers. He escaped.

People in Lynching Humor.

The dangerous temper of the people, particularly in the foreign quarters, who have been aroused by the reports of attacks upon women and girls, was exhibited tonight in repeated instances. A cry that a stranger had approached a child with familiarity was enough to start a mob.

Sadie Hamberger, aged 8 years, playing in the hallway of her tenement home in East Fifty-ninth street, this evening cried out that a man had seized her. The child's father seized George Keshner, a Russian bookbinder, by the throat. The excitement attracted 500 men and women, who fought with each other to get a chance at the Russian. Thirty policemen rescued Keshner, bleeding from a score of wounds, when all his clothing but his shoes had been torn from him. The police wrapped the prisoner in a blanket and hurried him away. Sadie's sister corroborated the story of the attack, and the father says that he saw his daughter in the grasp of the Russian.

Nearly Lost His Scalp.

About the same time Hyle Saloda, nearly lost his scalp in Thirty-fourth street. He was accused of having offered pennies to a girl of 12 years. The father wanted to know why, and Saloda showed fight.

He slashed about him with a penknife, and then knocked down a policeman. A crowd of perhaps a thousand persons attempted to reach Saloda, but police reserves beat them back and took Saloda to the station.

Louis Concalia was the victim of circumstances. A man and wife quarreled in One Hundredth and Seventh street, and their youthful daughter went out to the sidewalk and wept. A passing boy slapped her, and ran away. The girl's cries and the running boy aroused the neighbors, who chased the lad. The boy escaped, and Concolia, who had outfooted the other pursuers, was mistaken by the mob for the girl's assailant.

Overtaken at last Concolia was set upon and knocked down and kicked until nearly dead. The police rescued him after he was dangerously injured.

75 STRIKE BREAKERS ON WAY.

To Take Place of Strikers on the Colorado and Southern.

Denver, Colo., August 4.—Officials of the Colorado and Southern railroad said today that seventy-five strike breakers were on their way to Denver from different parts of the country to take the places of switchmen, yardmen, brakemen and others of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen who struck for an increase in wages of 2 cents an hour. This is the principal development in the strike.

One freight train was sent out of the yards today, manned by brakemen who took the places of strikers, and they were furnished the protection of a deputy sheriff from this city.

STANDARD OIL TRIES TO GET EVERY PENNY

Significant Revelations About Combine Made by Commissioner of Corporations.

EVERYTHING FOR ITSELF, NOTHING FOR THE PEOPLE

Claim That Trust Has Cheapened Oil Is False—Rockefeller's Monopoly Has Steadily Worked to Squeeze Every Possible Penny Out of Consumer.

Washington, August 4.—Significant revelations are made public today in a report submitted to President Roosevelt by Herbert Knox Smith, commissioner of corporation, concerning the operations of the Standard Oil Company. In a previous report, the means and methods of the Standard were explained. The present report sets forth the results of those methods and the effect they have had on the consumer of oil and on the profits of the Standard Oil Company. It deals with profits and prices, showing just how the manipulation of the oil industry by the Standard has affected the pocket books of the American people.

Commissioner Smith says:

"The Standard Oil Company is responsible for the course of the prices of petroleum and its products during the last twenty-five years. The standard has consistently used its power to raise the price of oil during the last ten years, not only absolutely, but also relatively to the cost of crude oil."

Claims of Oil Trust False.

The Standard has claimed that it has reduced the price of oil; that it has been a benefit to the consumer, and that only a great combination like the Standard could have furnished oil at the prices that have prevailed.

"Each one of these claims," says Commissioner Smith, "is disproved by this report." The increase in annual profits of the Standard from 1896 to 1904 was over $27,000,000. The reports says:

"The total dividends paid by the Standard from 1882 to 1906 were $551,922,904, averaging thus 24.15 per cent per year. The dividends, however, were much less than the total earnings. It is substantially certain that the entire net earnings of the Standard in this period were at least $790,000,000, and possibly much more.

"These enormous reports have been based on an investment worth at the time of its original acquisition not more than $25,000,000."

The Trust Gets Everything.

Commissioner Smith says:

"The following facts are proven: The Standard has not reduced margins during the period in which it has been responsible for the prices of oil. During the last eight years covered by this report (1898 to 1905) it has raised both prices and margins. Its domination has not been acquired or maintained by its superior efficiency, but rather by unfair competition and methods economically and most unjustifiable. The Standard has superior efficiency in running its own business; it has an equal efficiency in destroying the business of competitors. It keeps for itself the profits of the first and adds to these the monopoly profits secured by the second. Its profits are far above the highest possible standard of a reasonable commercial return, and have been steadily increasing. Finally, the history of this great industry is a history of the persistent use of the worst industrial methods, the exaction of exorbitant prices from the consumer, and the securing of excessive profits for the small group of men who over a long series of years have thus dominated the business."

In a few days another section of the report will be made public, setting forth the importance of price discrimination in restraining the business of competitors and augmenting the profits of the Standard.

HOPES OF SMART SET BLASTED BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

Oyster Bay, N. Y., August 4.—Within the week two positive statements have emanated from some of the fashionable summer colonies of New England to the effect that the president and Mrs. Roosevelt have accepted invitation which would place them for a brief space in the summer social whirl.

From Boston there recently came a report that the president had accepted the hospitality extended to himself and Mrs. Roosevelt to be the house guests of Hon. James Bryce, the British ambassador, at Intervale, New Hampshire.

A few days later it was published with great positiveness that the president and Mrs. Roosevelt were to spend a number of days in Newport as guests of Commodore and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, and, incidentally, would accept many invitations to social functions. This visit was reported to begin August 15.

As the announcements have been allowed without confirmation, the newspaper colony is said to have begun to make the most of what would be a really new sensation. Newport's joy of anticipation, however, is to be its only participation in the president's summer vacation. It is stated here with much positiveness that with the one exception of his visit to Provincetown, Mass., on the occasion of thte celebration of the landing of the Pilgrim fathers August 20, the president will remain at Sagamore Hill throughout the summer.

In this connection it is pointed out that Mr. Roosevelt's only participation in society functions since he became president has been those required by official etiquette.

He is enjoying his stay here to the fullest, putting in many hours of recreation and vigorous exercise and at the same time doing much work on pending matters of state. The strict curtailment of visitors and the rule that no one is received except by previous engagement has added greatly to the president's leisure this summer, and he admits that it has been his most enjoyable vacation since he became president.

SMALL MAJORITY FOR WILLIAMS

Complete Returns from Several Sources Give Him Victory.

OFFICIAL COUNT THIS WEEK

Until Official Count Is Made Governor Vardaman Will Not Admit Defeat—Governor Declares Official Review Will Show That He Has Won.

Jackson, Miss., August 4.—Until the votes cast in the democratic primary of last Thursday are canvassed this week by the designated officials, the result of the senatorial contest will, to a certain extent, remain in doubt. Complete unofficial returns received from several sources show a plurality in favor of Congressman John Sharp Williams over Governor Jas. K. Vardaman, but this plurality is comparatively small and neither Governor Vardaman or his managers will concede defeat, declaring that the official review of the vote will show his election by a small majority.

Baseball Player Preaches.

Macon, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—Robert Houston, right fielder for the Macon baseball team, was heard by a large congregation at the Vineville Methodist church this evening. He has appeared the second time in Macon pulpits as a preacher, and both times had large congregations that were well pleased with the discourse. This player is finishing a course in one of the large eastern seminaries, and will be ready for the ministry next year.

Kidney and Bladder

Troubles are among the most delicate that engages the expert specialists' attention. Not so long ago there was only two things treated by the physician, viz.: Bright's Disease and Inflammation of the Bladder. We regret to say that this is about as far as the average doctor's classification goes today. Bright's, we know today, to be due to several different conditions. The importance of knowing the exact condition is easily seen.

We have already told of the man treated for Bright's, because albumen was found in the urine; but a careful analysis showed no Bright's, but a condition easily cured.

He is today a successful business man, though three eminent physicians told him he could not live.

And then there was the young woman treated by a number of prominent specialists in both America and Europe for chronic inflammation of the bladder—found by us to be another condition entirely, and though she had suffered nine years, was practically cured in a fortnight and entirely so in a month.

This being so, if you suffer, don't you think you owe it to yourself to call on us for examination? This is free and you incur no obligation to take our treatment by so doing. If you can't call write us for booklet, and if you choose to write us particulars about your case, we will advise you free of charge.

We have a booklet for Men, one for Women, one on Brain and Nerve Exhaustion, and Essays on Health. Either sent free of charge. Call or address

FEAR IS FELT FOR MANSFIELD

Illness May Keep Famous Actor from the Stage.

Ampeesand, Lake Saranac, August 4.—The continued illness of Richard Mansfield, the actor, since his return from Europe, has aroused some apprehension as to the effect on his stage career. Mr. Mansfield, accompanied by his wife and brother, arrived here from Montreal last Saturday night. Mr. Mansfield refuses absolutely to see any one. His brother Felix Mansfield said:

"Mr. Mansfield, as is well known, suffered a severe nervous breakdown, due to over-work. He has taken practically no vacation for several years. The voyage to England in the latter part of May upset him. He has been advised to take a complete rest and free his mind from business and professional matters. He is convalescing slowly and we believe it is just a question of time when he shall regain his strength and vigor."

There is reason to believe that Mr. Mansfield's condition is more serious than his family admit. It is known that following Mr. Mansfield's previous prostration, he has suffered great pain from sciatic rheumatism and has complained of severe pains in his side, probably caused by pleurisy.

Queen Alexandra Presented Lieutenant With Union Jack.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, August 4.—The opening day of Cowes week was [illegible] great animation and a constant arrival of yachts. The day was given up to visiting. King Edward, Queen Alexandra, the prince of Wales, and the royal party inspected the steam barkentine "Endurance," which is to bear the expedition on the voyage of exploration to the Antarctic regions. Queen Alexandra presented Lieutenant Shackleton, the commander, with a union jack and an autograph letter which said, "May this union jack which I entrust to your keeping lead you safely to the south pole."

King Edward conferred the Victorian order upon Lieutenant Shackleton.

Pope Suspends Jubilee Pilgrimage.

Rome, August, 4.—Pope Pius has directed the suspension of the first of the jubilee pilgrimages to Rome, notably of two which were about to start from France.

FIRE BEING USED AGAINST BANDIT

Desolating Warfare Is Waged to Suppress Raisuli.

FRANCE SENDS WARSHIPS

Spain Will Act With France, and Order Will Be Restored in Morocco—No Late News From Casa Blanca.

Tangier, August 4.—Official advices received here say that the Sherifian troops have attacked and burned the village of Hauta, near Raisuli's abode.

It transpires that when, on July 27, the Emass tribesmen demanded that Raisuli surrender Caid Sir Henry MacLean, because they feared an attack by the sultan's troops, Raisuli sullenly vanished, taking MacLean with him into the hills, where he left him in charge of his (Raisuli's) brother. MacLean was then badly treated, but after five days was brought back again. Negotiations for his release continue.

Arab Horsemen About Town.

Up to noon no further advices had been received from Casa Blanca. The arrival there of the French cruiser Galilee last Wednesday made a good impression, but the Europeans were still greatly excited, as 2,000 Arab horsemen were in sight of the city. The commander of the Galilee offered to bombard the town, but the foreign consuls prevented this action. All foreign business houses and the banks are closed and business is at a standstill. The Italian cruiser Etna, with the Italian minister aboard, has arrived at Casa Blanca.

The excuses presented by the emissary of Mohammed El Torres, foreign representative of the sultan, for the disturbances at Casa Blanca have been received here with derision.

In spite of his wound, it is reported that General Bagdani, head of the government force operating against the bandit Raisuli in an endeavor to rescue Caid Sir Harry MacLean, is pressing on. It is said the tribesmen are frightened at the manner in which Bagdani is sacking and burning villages and are negotiating with Raisuli for the release of MacLean.

France Prepares to Act.

Paris, August 4.—The government received today through the French charge d'affaires at Tangier the excuses of the Moroccan government concerning the troubles at Casa Blanca and its usual assurances that its orders have been given to the governers of the various ports that they will be held responsible for the security of foreigners. But these platonic assurances will not affect the program the government is planning with Spain and for which active preparations are proceeding.

The second naval division, consisting of the cruisers Gueydon, Gloire and Jeanne D'Arc, sailed from Toulon today for Morocco. The entire coast of that country probably will be patroled by French and Spanish fleets until the international police has been established.

General A. M. B. Drude, commanding the first regiment of the Fourth Algerian tirailleurs, has been given command of the French expeditionary force that is embarking at Oran for Casa Blanca.

Earl of Clan William, London.

London, August 4.—Richard James Mead, fourth earl of Clan William, is dead. He was born in 1832.

John M. Redding, Cuthbert, Ga.

Cuthbert, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—John M. Redding, one of Randolph county's oldest citizens, and for a number of years engaged in the cotton warehouse and fertilizer business in Cuthbert, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ed Sealey, four miles northeast of Cuthbert, this morning, of blood poison. Several days ago, Mr. Redding went to his farm and spent the day, being out in the sun most of the time. He had a bad sore on his arm, which became irritated, and from which blood poison set in, causing his death. Mr. Redding lost a leg in the war between the states. For many years he served the county as treasurer. He is survived by two sons, Harry and John Redding, of Albany, and one daughter, Mrs. Ed Sealy, of this county. He is also survived by two brothers, C. A. Redding, of this city, and Jack Redding, of Alabama. His funeral took place from the Methodist church, Sunday morning.

PUMP PURCHASE BEFORE COUNCIL THIS AFTERNOON

More Talks Being Heard About Postponing the Purchase for Awhile.

WITHOUT ANOTHER PUMP CITY WILL BE IN DANGER

Row About Kind of Pump to Be Bought Has Been the One Cause of Delay—Matter Will Come Up This Afternoon.

With two reservoirs, two mains from the river, two mains into the city from Hemphill station and a reserve pump at the river, the city should have another pump at Hemphill station, is the opinion of all who have closely studied the situation.

With the two reservoirs, the two mains and the extra pump at the river, the city would still be in danger all the while without an extra pump at Hemphill station is the opinion of the chief engineer and other city officials who have looked into and studied the waterworks system.

If at any time the large pump at Hemphill station should break down, the city would be without fire pressure, is the declaration of the chief engineer.

Engineers have made a report to the Southeastern Tariff Association, and stated that Atlanta needed another pump at Hemphill station.

Yet, it is said that certain members of council will take the position this afternoon, when council meets, that it "won't hurt to wait a little while about a pump."

History May Repeat Itself.

Two years ago, it is being shown, there was a demand for a water main from the river, and members of council said that it wouldn't "hurt to wait a little while about buying a new main." There came a water shortage, and the cry went up:

"There has been negligence. Somebody is to blame for Atlanta having this terrible muddy water."

Very recently several members of council stated publicly on the floor of the council chamber that everybody was aware of the fact that the city's waterworks department was inadequate to the demands made upon it.

Now steps have been taken to finish the new reservoir; a new main is being laid from the river to Hemphill station; new clear water and coagulating basins are being constructed, and new filters will be purchased; and yet, so it has been pointed out by everybody who has given the subject a close study, the waterworks system will still be incomplete and the city hourly endangered if the new pump is not installed at Hemphill station.

One Cause of Delay.

The city council has been wrangling about what kind of a pump to buy for three months or more, and it is pretty well admitted that if there had been no division as to the kind of pump that should be purchased, the pump would have been contracted for long ago. The row over the kind of pump has caused the recent talk about "no pump being needed at all just now."

When a vote is taken on the purchase of a pump this afternoon the ayes and noes will be called and the vote published, so the people of Atlanta can know and make a note of just who it is that is willing to postpone such an important matter and leave the city in danger of another water shortage.

A LESSON IN LAW.

Several Things the Philadelphia Drummer Didn't Know.

(From the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.)

"Most of us think we know the law pretty well," said the Philadelphia drummer, "but I had a little experience to show me that there are several things in the statute books that I don't know. I was in a New England town and dropped into a barber shop to get shaved. There was only one barber, and he didn't look as if he knew putty. He turned out to be a pretty good shaver, however, and as I had had a drink just before entering the shop I fell asleep in the chair. I slept for half an hour, and when I awoke he was through with me. The first thing I missed on getting out of the chair was my roll of money, next my watch, next my overcoat, next and lastly my scarfpin. I went for that barber for all I was worth, but he denied robbing me, and his face wore a smile. Then I got a gait on me and went to a lawyer's office.

"'Can you prove by a credible witness that you had $90 in cash when you entered the barber shop?' he asked.

"I couldn't."

"'Can you prove that your watch was taken in the shop instead of being lost on the street?'

"I couldn't.

"'Are you sure that you had your pin on as you opened the door to enter?'

"I wasn't.

"'As to your overcoat,' continued the lawyer, 'have you a bill of sale of it, or was any one with you when you bought it? In other words, can you swear to the ownership in law of any particular coat?'

"I couldn't.

"'Then I can do nothing for you,' he said, and I went to a second lawyer to be told the same thing. I had left the shop without paying for my shave, and I was even told that the barber could arrest me for beating him out of 15 cents and have me fined $5. I believe I can quote Shakespeare correctly and distinguish between tea and sugar, but when it comes down to the law I am not in it. It's too kinky."

How Inconsiderate!

(From The Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

"Young Ruggles did a very thoughtless thing."

"What was that?"

"He wrote a poem in honor of a certain young woman who had just completed her twenty-first birthday, and published it in the college paper."

"Wasn't it a good poem?"

"Very good."

"What's the criticism, then?"

"Why, everybody who wants to find out can look back any time and discover how old the young woman is."

COTTON PLANT TAKING ON FRUIT

Reports as to Condition for Last Week Are Cheering.

SOME SECTIONS NEED RAIN

But in Most Cases Distinct Improvement Is Noted—Reports From Georgia Indicate a Good Yield—Little Complaint of Boll Weevil.

Memphis, August 4.—The Commercial-Appeal tomorrow will print the following summary of crop conditions throughout the cotton belt, compiled from reports of their special correspondents:

While general and moderate to heavy rains did not fall during the week, many heavy or light showers did, and they were so widely scattered that much the larger part of the cotton belt, from Texas to North Carolina, was visited. Those sections which received no rain complain of the drouth and are badly in need of moisture. In sections where the precipitation was light a number of moist, cloudy days succeeded each other and the most was thereby gotten from the rain. Reports of improvement are largely in excessfi some correspondents noting the best progress of the season. Reports from Georgia indicate a large production, and the Texas reports are the best of the season.

The small plant is everywhere taking on fruit in an excellent manner and in proportion to size promises to be a large producer. Irregularity is still apparent throughout the central cotton belt, some fields promising well, while others are not nearly so good. The poor stand in the central belt will also perhaps be a factor in the final outturn. But whatever the condition of the plant, a marked improvement has taken place where showers fell.

There is little complaint of damage from boll weevil in the infested districts and elsewhere there are no damaging insects.

Southern Texas remains dry and the cotton is being opened prematurely and before it is fully matured. The yield there is less than last year's.

Barring the lack of well-distributed moisture, the week was a very favorable one. The area untouched by showers, while worthy of note, was not so large as to be alarming.

Crop Has Held Its Own.

New Orleans, August 4.—The Picayune's cotton summary tomorrow will say:

The cotton crop has held its own during the week in southern Mississippi and the whole of Louisiana, according to correspondents' reports to The Picayune. August will prove the crucial month. A slight overplus of rain will cause severe shedding of the plant, and lack of moisture will result in premature opening, with consequent deterioration in the grade of the staple. However, present conditions are now extremely favorable, with the prospect of steady improvement all during the fruiting stage. Should the warm and hot weather of the last week continue through the next ten days, there will be considerable opening of bolls. A surprising feature is the mysterious disappearance of boll weevils in some portions of the Red river section. This is accounted for in part by the excessively warm period, it being explained that weevils, wilted by the sun, drop to the ground and are boiled and roasted to death. Turpentine experiments for the pest are still being made, with a fair degree of success. In Grant parish the weevil, finding little cotton to operate upon, has resorted to corn, and is even found in flour and meal in storehouses.

Report of Times-Democrat.

New Orleans, August 4.—The Times-Democrat's monthly crop estimate for tomorrow will say:

Distinct improvement has been the rule throughout the belt, the weather having been favorable and the cultivation thorough.

The plant has grown rapidly, but is still small, as compared with the normal, and is, therefore, peculiarly dependent upon the date of frost.

Serious complaints of boll weevil come from certain sections of Texas and Louisiana, but the extent of the injury remains to be determined.

Some time must elapse before the crop begins to move in earnest, and farmers appear to be determined to hold for higher prices.

300 Bolls, Blooms and Squares.

Dawson, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—W. F. Locks has a splendid field of cotton on his farm a few miles below Dawson, and a stalk recently brought therefrom to this place contained three hundred bolls, blooms and squares. It was of the Floradora variety, which is being introduced into this section, and seemingly is well adapted to the soil of this county.

Feared Rains Will Cause Damage.

Dawson, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—It is feared that the heavy rains, which have fallen here for some days past, will result in considerable damage to the cotton crop, and it is certain that the work of saving fodder has been materially affected by recent rainfalls.

Marrying Stenographers.

(From The Pittsburg Dispatch.)

A worthy statistician has figured that among women the business of stenography has increased more than three to one in the ten years between 1890 and 1900, and that of all the private secretaries, stenographers, typewriters and so on, fully three to one are women. Of the total number of persons of sixteen years of age and over who are engaged in stenography, more than 76 per cent are women. A curious feature of the statistics is that which shows that of the 85,086 women employed as stenographers in 1900, 53,816 were between the ages of sixteen and twenty-nve, and 26,001 were between the ages of twenty-five and thirty-five. After that age the number diminishes rapidly. This would seem to show that the stenographer gets married early and leaves her employment.

Old Roast of Shakespeare.

From The Pittsburg Dispatch.)

Pepsy's Diary, 1659-1669, commenting on Shakespeare's plays, says of "Midsummer Night's Dream": "It is the most insipid, ridiculous play I ever saw in my life;" and upon reading "'Othello, Moor of Venice,' which I have hitherto esteemed a mighty good play, but having lately read 'he 'Adventures of Five Hours,' it seems a mean thing."

STATES TO MAKE COTTON REPORT

If Plan of Commissioner Watson Is Adopted.

SICK OF THE GOVERNMENT

South Carolina Commissioner Interests Commissioners of the Cotton Belt in Scheme to Get Accurate Data as to Cotton.

Columbia, S. C., August 4.—(Special.)—Probably the first attempt on the part of any branch of a state government in the south to give anything like a comprehensive report of the condition of the cotton crop was that issued by Commissioner of Immigration and Agriculture E. J. Watson, of this state, on August 1, which showed the condition of the cotton crop in this state to be 80.5. That Mr. Watson's information was authentic was verified by the government report issued the following day, showing the condition in South Carolina to be 81.

As president of the Southern States Commissioners of Agriculture, which will meet in Columbia, in October next, Mr. Watson announces that in view of the various complaints of the government cotton crop reports, it is his aim to have accurate data collected in each of the cotton growing states for the purpose of making a general report of the cotton crop at the meeting to be held in this city.

In discussing the work now engaging Commissioner Watson's attention, he said:

Mr. Watson Talks.

"The issuing of our midseason cotton report is but the beginning of an effort throughout the cotton producing states to provide for an estimate of thoroughly accurate cotton reports, and a final estimate prepared with strict regard to accuracy by those who are more or less charged with the care of the interests of southern agriculture. In view of the great complaint that has so often followed the preparation of the reports in Washington, there has been a growing demand for reports from official sources in the south. So far as I know the report issued yesterday by the South Carolina department is the first general midseason report to be issued in any of the states, and great care was taken in its preparation.

"It is not the purpose to issue another before October 1, which is practically the close of the season, and this will be preparatory to the most accurate estimate possible of the crop about November 15.

"This matter of how to get reports has been discussed from time to time by the southern states commissioners in their annual sessions, and upon assuming the presidency of this association, which embraces all of the states from Virginia to Texas, I determined, if possible, to get every state at work in the effort to secure accurate information upon which to base a final estimate at the next meeting of the association, which is to be held in Columbia the third week in November. Some time ago, almost simultaneously with the beginning of the work in this state for the report just issued, as president of the association, I directed a letter to each one of the southern commissioners, urging that accurate data as to cotton be procured.

Interest Is Shown.

"I have heard from practically all of the commissioners, and in Georgia, North Carolina, Texas and Oklahoma particularly thoroughly well organized work is already well under way and it appears that all of the states will bring their final estimates to the annual meeting of the association in Columbia next November, under seal, to be opened by a committee of the association, and by the association promulgated. It is noteworthy that the matter has been deemed of so great importance in the state of Texas that in addition to the department of agriculture the legislature there has recently established a thoroughly equipped bureau of statistics for the purpose of gathering this information. This bureau is charged with the same work that is attached to the department in this state, but has a much better equipment for the purpose, which, of course, is necessitated by the larger area to be covered.

"As I take it, it will be many years before the price of cotton will ever hover again in the neighborhood of the actual cost of production, for the situation has changed in the past decade, and the world's demand for crude cotton is ever increasing, and as far as a study of the markets beyond the seas at present is concerned the time does not seem to be in prospect when the increase in demand will be less than it is today. In fact, the cotton manufacturing industry abroad is developing at such a rate that the crude product must be had, and it is an undisputed fact that in the matter of crude product the south holds the absolute monopoly. When the population of the world ceases to increase, then perhaps the demand for crude cotton will decrease. It is of supreme importance, therefore, that reliable facts in regard to the south's cotton crop shall be given to the world, and given as far and as accurately as possible from southern sources."

Youthful Financier.

(From The New York Post.)

This really happened in New York the other day:

Displeased Parent—Molly, I find you have been buying three pairs of gloves without my permission. Why did you do so? Miss Molly (aged twelve)—Why, daddy, I was obliged to have some gloves; I hadn't a pair to wear! Displeased Parent—It was wrong of you to buy the gloves without the permission either of your mamma or myself. Miss Molly—Well, never mind, daddy, dear; they won't cost anything, I had them charged."

41 PERSONS DROWN LIKE RATS IN TRAP

Frightful Accident Occurs on a French Railroad Near Angiers.

CROWDED LOCAL TRAIN GOES INTO RIVER LOIRE

Forty Passengers and the Engineer Perish Like Rats in Trap—The Conductor and Fireman Only Persons to Make Escape.

Angiers, France, August 4.—Forty passengers in a third-class railroad car and the engineer of the train were drowned this afternoon in a railroad accident three miles southeast of this town.

The locomotive of a crowded local train jumped the track when entering the bridge over the river Loire at Les Ponts de Ce. The stone railing gave way and the engine plunged into the river fifty feet below, dragging down with it its tender and the baggage and third-class cars. Fortunately no other cars went into the water, as the coupling between the second and third cars broke.

The conductor and fireman were the only persons whose lives were saved. They escaped by swimming.

The third-class car was well filled with passengers, but although part of the roof was blown off by the confined air as it sank, not a single passenger extricated himself and all were drowned like rats in a trap. The engineer perished beneath the locomotive.

FOR DEFENSE OF PANAMA CANAL.

Almirante Bay Off Panama Coast to Be Made Naval Station.

Washington, August 4.—The navy department is completing a work which may have an important bearing on the general plan of defense of the projected Panama canal. The final chart work incidental to the survey of Almirante bay, off the coast of Panama, is being made ready for the hydrographic office.

Admiral Crowninshield, when chief of the navigation bureau ten years ago, first realized the possibilities of Almirante bay as a naval rendezvous and coaling station.

The fact that Guantanamo is not far distant from Almirante bay, and has already been considerably developed as a naval station, has operated to give the attention for the time being from the bay, but its superior advantages in the way of deep water and a good entrance and room for maneuvers, besides its nearness to Colon, where vessels must call, but where for many years they cannot hope to do more than lie in the open roadstead, has revived interest in the development of Almirante bay as a naval station of the second class, and the surveys just completed will afford ample material for the consideration of this subject by congress.

SHOT NEGRO IN FLORIDA.

Culloden Man Emptied Contents of Six Barrels in Negro.

Apalachicola, Fla., August 4.—(Special.)—There was considerable excitement here last week. Professor Cantrell, a young man from Culloden, Ga., who was principal of the high school here, got into a dispute with a negro named Munroe Hunter. Cantrell, after some twenty-four hours time, armed with a 38 calibre, went to the cypress mills, where Hunter was employed, and proceeded to empty the contents of six barrels into his body. Cantrell surrendered to the sheriff, and the negroes threatened to be ugly, but were cooled down by the military. In the meantime Cantrell's father, a Methodist minister of Culloden, came down to the aid of his son, who had been remanded to jail to await a commitment. Last Friday the lawyers of the accused waived a commitment trial, and Judge Patton placed the defendant under a bond of $500. The defendant and his father left for Georgia next morning.

EDITOR KILLED BY UNKNOWN MAN

L. M. Scott Shot to Death at Helena, Arkansas.

NO CLUE TO THE ASSASSIN

Scott Was Found on Sidewalk With Two Bullets in Head, and Died Without Making a Statement—Scott Had Been Fighting the Police.

Helena, Ark., August 4.—J. M. Scott, city editor of The Helena World, was found dead on the sidewalk this morning at 2 o'clock. Two bullets had entered his head, and although he lived a few hours after being found, was unable to make a statement. So far no clue to the assassin exists.

A month ago an attempt was made to kill Mr. Scott. He was attracted to the rear of his office by a noise and on approaching to ascertain the cause, two shots were fired at him. He began firing in return and his assailants fled. He was not able to identify them.

It is generally believed that the killing was due to a personal quarrel and that it had no connection with the crusade of The World on the police department some months ago, which forced the resignation of the chief of police, who afterwards attempted to commit suicide.

ELECTRIC BOLT BROKE HIS NECK

Spinal Cord of Florida Boy Is Snapped by Lightning.

Jacksonville, Fla., August 4.—At Fulton, a small town on the St. John's river, 15 miles from here, Charles Leidy, Jr., 14 years of age, was killed by a stroke of lightning today, the bolt running down the front of a building and entering a door. It struck the boy on the neck, breaking the spinal cord. Three others in the building were rendered unconscious, but all recovered within an hour.

KAISER HOLDS DIVINE SERVICE.

He Called Everybody to Prayer on Yacht Hohenzollern.

Schlingmeunde, Prussia, August 4.—Emperor William conducted divine service on board the royal yacht Hohenzollern at 11 o'clock this morning. Emperor Nicholas was present. At noon Emperor William with Prince Von Buelow, the imperial chancellor, and his suite attended a special service and had luncheon aboard the Russian royal yacht Standart, and during the afternoon witnessed races between launches and cutters from the warships. The two emperors presented the prizes to the victorious crews.

Prospects Are Very Flattering.

Cuthbert, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—President Malone, of Andrew Female College, announces a most successful canvass for this popular institution of learning, and the indications are that this old and well-known institution will have the largest patronage enjoyed for several years. Cuthbert is proud of Andrew.

MONEY OUTLOOK STILL A PROBLEM

Heavy Undertone Was Induced by the Developments.

New York, August 4.—Last week saw evidences of continued perplexity over the financial and industrial outlook reflected in the action of the securities market. The immediate developments induced a heavy undertone to the speculation, although there was a mixture of favorable factors which acted as a restraint on positive weakness.

The most notable of the latter class of incidents was the showing of the United States Steel Corporation for the quarter ending July 30, of record net earnings of over $45,000,000, exceeding the most sanguine of the preliminary estimates. The falling off in the unfilled orders on hand from the preceding quarter was restricted to a little over 400,000 tons, and left that item well in excess of the figure at the corresponding period last year.

Setback Admitted.

The large sums made available and set aside for the enlargement and extensions in which the corporation is engaged insured its immunity also from the embarrassments from scanty available capital and generous interest charges which have been such a grave feature in the situation of railroad corporation for some time past. All of this was practically overborne, however, by the frank act of acknowledgment on behalf of the corporation that the new orders received during July had fallen 25 to 30 per cent below those of July last. This fact was accepted as conclusive evidence of the sharp set-back to which the iron and stel trade had been subjected as a belated effect of the curtailment in enterprise which had been foreseen as soon as the difficulties of the railroads in securing capital for carrying out projects of betterment had developed. Copper prices abroad have continued to decline. With this situation in the metal trades the influence is lessened or lost of the continuing reports of activity in other lines of trade and evidence of the still expanded bank clearings of the country of undiminished activity in mercantile lines. This evidence of sustained mercantile activity and the large requirements on banking resources thus applied help to complicate the outlook in the money market, from which relief is considered essential to insure any effective revival of investment demand of capital. Contracting of business activity, lowering of prices, accumulation of capital and awakened flow into investment is the sequence of events considered necessary for the working out of the situation.

British Consols Way Down.

During the week British consols sold at the lowest level since 1848, and the incident is a central testimony to the existing prostration of the investment situation. The immediate factor in the fall in consols was the forced liquidation growing out of the overextension on Egyptian industrial ventures.

Foreign money markets and the reports of condition of the great central banks abroad give warning of the coming pressure and the restriction of resources.

M. Paul LeRoy-Bealieu, the distinguished French economist, has registered his opinion that opportunity for an advantageous return of capital is now offered for the first time in over twenty years past.

Signs of an investment demand from accumulating capital are looked for as the true heral dof coming restoration. In New York the bond department of the stock exchange shows no stirring of activity and the bond dealers are not able to report any important absorption for demand investment An incident of the week, however, was the sale by the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railway to J. P. Morgan. The transaction was regarded as evidence of the continued difficulty of securing capital, but the fact that the attempt was saved from failure was made the subject of professed gratification on the part of principals.

DRIVER AND MILK WAGON GO OVER AN EMBANKMENT

Somersault at Bottom of Forty-Foot Incline at Corner of Waverly Place and Edgewood Avenue—Horse Badly Hurt.

A horse drawing a milk wagon belonging to W. A. Tabor, who owns the Kimball House dairy, located at Decatur, ran away on Edegwood avenue early yesterday morning, and in his mad flight plunged down the 40-foot embankment at Waverly place, painfully injuring the driver, Joe Bowles, and sustaining hurts himself, the most peculiar known to veterinary surgery.

Wagon, driver and horse shot down the incline with terrific force, and the outfit turned a complete somersault at the bottom, smashing half of the milk bottles, which badly cut the driver. One of the shafts of the wagon was driven clear through the right side of the horse's head, tearing his tongue almost out at the roots and imbedding itself in the roof of the animal's mouth, causing intense suffering and the loss of large quantities of blood.

The accident occurred near the residence of Dr. John W. Hurt, and he attended the injured driver. His wounds were painful, but superficial, and as soon as they had been dressed Dr. Hurt, realizing that the horse was in great pain, hurried in an automobile after Dr. Carnes. On arriving at the scene of the accident, Dr. Carnes discovered that the animal's life might be saved, and, instead of having him shot, pulled the embedded shaft from his neck by main force.

The piece of wood had penetrated the horse's throat from the under jaw and had just narrowly missed the windpipe, the severing of which would have produced instant death. When the flow of blood was stopped, the animal was taken to the hospital of the Drs. Carnes.

It was necessary to place a tube in his mouth so that he might be fed and watered, the tube running to the aesophagus. It will also be essential to the animal's welfare to perform tracheotomy by placing a tube into the windpipe so that he may breathe, and yet, with all this, Dr. Carnes states that the horse will survive.

Before this operation was performed, the horse could scarcely draw a breath. The animal will breathe and eat through these tubes until the roots of the tongue have grown back and the other wounds caused by the shaft sticking clear through the throat and under jaw are healed. One of the fore legs was also cut.

"It was a very rare and peculiar accident," said Dr. Carnes last night, "affecting both the respiratory and alimentary tracts, and requiring surgery to save the animal's life. It was very fortunate that the accident occurred at the early hour of 6 o'clock in the morning, as the runaway in his mad career would have doubtless run down pedestrians on the streets. As it was, there was scarcely a person out in the neighborhood at the time."

MANY ACTS OF BRAVERY OF MOUNTAIN CITIZEN

Athens, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—Connected with the recovery of the body of T. B. Magum, of this city, who lost his life on July 25 in the waters of the Tallulah river, is a story of the heroic action of a plain citizen of the mountains that deserves more than a passing notice.

Mr. Mangum, while bathing in the river above Hurricane falls, was swept over the falls to his death. His companion rushed to the village with the news of the death of Mr. Mangum, and a party was at once formed to search for the body of the unfortunate man. In this party was William Washington Askea, of Tallulah Falls, and others.

Mr. Askea worked faithfully until 11 o'clock that night, when he was forced to quit until daylight. Early the next morning he went down again into the chasm and searched until 3 o'clock that afternoon, building rafts, exploding dynamite, etc. He then put in grabs and hooks and worked until 9 o'clock that night. He came home for a few hours to the bedside of his sick daughter, and the next morning went to the work of recovering Mr. Mangum's body if possible. That morning he went into the chasm by himself and went down the river some distance, swimming and crawling over rocks and precipices. He came back up the river and discovered the body swaying on a rock at the head of Sweet Sixteen falls.

Mr. Askea has a record of bravery that deserves full notice. Between the years of 1876 and 1880 he saved the life of a young lady who fell from a boat into the Soquee river near Clarkesville, Ga., and soon after rescued a young man from drowning in the same river.

About the same time, he saved the town of Clarkesville from fire by climbing to the top of a house belonging to an old colored woman, Mandy Days, and tearing off the burning shingles with his bare hands. Had not this been done, the entire town, including the courthouse, would have been destroyed. In this work he suffered from a painfully blistered body, and his feet were badly burned.

In 1886 he rescued two ladies from a sleeping car overturned in a wreck on the Georgia Pacific railroad.

In 1902, while plowing in a field, he saw a smoke near his home, and soon found that the house of the late Judge Logan E. Bleckley was on fire. He gave the alarm and saved much of the furniture. Judge Bleckley was one of his friends.

Last summer a dreadful storm came up late in the afternoon and caught a large number of people out in the mountains and down in the chasm. Mr. Askea was out all night with his lantern searching for them and guiding them home.

It is characteristic of the man to be brave, and to be all the time watching the people around the falls, to insure their safety and get them out of trouble when they lose their way or get in dangerous places.

FREE FIREWORKS SHOW AT WHITE CITY TONIGHT

Between 7,000 and 8,000 people witnessed the free fireworks show at White City Saturday night, and that they enjoyed the spectacle was conclusively evidenced by the frequent applause and by the words of approval and praise heard on all sides.

Unfortunately, all the paraphernalia for the reproduction in fireworks of the ride of Paul Revere had not been erected in time for the presentation of this feature Saturday night.

This act will certainly be presented tonight, the management announces, and will be a feature of the free fireworks performances to be put on every night this week. The act is said to be one of the thrilling kind, and will appeal as well to the lovers of the beautiful as to the lovers of excitement.

The street car company will run special schedules every night in order to accommodate the crowds that are certain to come out to the free fireworks performance, as was the case Saturday night, when about 7,000 people rode on the East Fair line to White City.

Sunday was also a great day at White City, about 15,000 people visiting the beautiful park during the afternoon and evening. As is always the custom, Wedemeyer's band gave two special concerts.

Today is Constitution day at Atlanta's new amusement resort, and all its children friends who clipped the coupons from yesterday's Constitution will be entitled to entrance to all the amusements and access to all the great riding devices free of charge this afternoon.

FATHER AND SON PERISH IN WELL

Father Lost His Life Trying to Save His Son.

Birmingham, Ala., August 4.—James Garrity and son, living at Refuge, 11 miles from town, were overcome by gases and died in a 60-foot well today.

They were engaged in cleaning the well. The son, who was 17 years of age, went down to load the buckets. After a short while he called to his father and other men who were helping to pull him out, as he felt ill. He got in the bucket, and, after being drawn up a few feet, fell back. The father went down and tied the boy in the bucket. After he had again been drawn up about twenty feet he again fell. The men at the top at this time noticed that the father was evidently ill, and another man went down. He found the boy dead and the father expiring. Both father and son were taken out. Mr. Garrity died in a few minutes after reaching the surface.

RUSSIANS BEAT OFF JAPANESE.

Attempted Onslaught on Seal Rookery Is Blocked.

Victoria, B. C., August 4.—Advices were received today of an attempted onslaught on seals by the Japanese sailing schooners Kaike and Midori, on June 1, in the seal rookery at Copper Island, guarded by Russians. The schooner Kaike returned to Japan and reported three sealing boats and twelve men captured and one man shot by Russians. The Midori, which had been anchored close to the Kaike, was fired on by the Russian rookery guard, and had a mast damaged by shellfire from a field gun on shore.

COUNTRY MULE AND WAGON BLOCK LONG LINE OF CARS

The patience of several hundred of the younger members of Atlanta's social set was sorely tried last night about 9 o'clock.

It was only an old country mule and a very dilapidated wagon, being driven by an old antebellum darkey—all three: the mule, the wagon, and the negro were going along very peacefully out Peachtree street. All went well, everything was quiet and serene, but when the corner of East Pine was reached, the mule went wrong, and pulled the wagon right into the switch where the cars turned out Pine street. There the wagon became stationary—the mule could not pull it forward, and no persuasion could make him back the wagon out—there it stood.

In the meantime electric cars, heavily laden with attractive young ladies and their escorts, were on the way to Ponce de Leon. The young people were looking forward with much pleasure to the time when they would be enjoying the attraction of the pleasant summer resort, but a halt was called, on came one car after another, until the street was literally lined with them, about thirty being piled up together.

"What is the matter?" cried out a charming young lady, daintily dressed; "why don't they go on?" "Aren't these cars a nuisance?" cried out another, and so for several moments, "sweet" expressions were heard on all sides. "Twenty minutes for lunch," sang out a drummer who just happened to be aboard.

After a considerable delay, a crowbar, in the meantime having arrived from the carshed of the company, the old wagon was forced to let go the switch, and the cars proceeded, carrying their precious freight.

BAND AT PONCE DE LEON PLEASES SUNDAY CROWDS

There were thousands of people at Ponce de Leon park on Sunday. They came from all over Atlanta, and represented all the people. They were refreshed by an afternoon concert and another at night, and Matthiessen and his musicians can feel that they have something good to their credit, for many a tired mind and body were stimulated by the classic music that so delighted.

All over the woodland, and under the comfortable shelter buildings, seated on comfortable benches, and inviting rocking chairs, or perhaps out on the acres of lawn, tired people enjoyed an afternoon of real rest. They visited the mineral springs, the flower gardens, and the natural and artificial beauties of the park, and went home stronger, better and brighter.

Ponce de Leon is a wonderful institution. There is some talk of the day when it will become a city park, for the thousands of dollars private capital has expended in making the place so beautiful will never go to waste. The park is one of the most inviting and attractive in the country. There are acres yet to be developed, and there is no place of recreation quite so easy for all Atlanta to reach. The car service is absolutely the best, averaging seventy cars an hour from all parts of the city.

The amusement features at the resort of recreation and fun are of the highest degree of excellence. They represent all that the most willing management knows to be popular and progressive. There is no park in the entire south its equal, and there are few even in the larger cities its superior.

Arrangements are being perfected for another Children's day, when all of the little people of Atlanta who cannot enjoy the pleasures of the resort as easy as some others more blessed will be the guests of the management.

Matthiessens' band will render concerts every afternoon and evening during the week. This band has become one of the prides of the city, and its style and enterprise has been heartily indorsed.

The monkey house is indeed a house of fun. The little natives of India and Africa have become acquainted with thousands of Atlanta children, and there is always something doing in the neighborhood of this popular part of the park.

So successful has the season been, the management has not determined on its closing date, for it is more than probable the first of November will find the resort still open, and crowded, as it has been, with a merry multitude finding health and happiness.

CASSIS CHARGED WITH MURDER

FIGHT GREW OUT OF CARDS

Main Witness Charged the Killing of Mike Kaptuch, a Russian, on a Pole Named Foder Cassis. First Murder at Statesboro.

Statesboro, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—After gathering evidence and a rigid examination lasting the entire afternoon, assisted by D. Friedman, a local merchant, who acted as interpreter, the main witness in the murder of Mike Kaptuch, a Russian employee on the Savannah, Augusta and Northern railroad, confessed at a late hour last night that a Pole by the name of Foder Cassis was the man who did the killing.

The two men were gambling on the front piazza of the shanty occupied by the gang of Russians and Poles, and it is said that Kaptuch was about $50 the winner, and that Cassis wanted him to give it back. Kaptuch refusing to do this he pulled his knife and stabbed him to the heart. The wounded man ran off of the porch into the street, where he fell and died in a few minutes. Cassis ran around the house and came back and assisted in bringing the dead man in, doing this in an effort to throw off suspicion, it is said.

The dead man, it is said, has a wife and two children in New York, and also a brother in New York, who is said to be on the way here, but does not know anything of the tragedy.

While only one of the gang of Russians will be tried for the murder, unless something new develops implicating others, it is well understood that the rest of the gang will be held and tried for gambling. The body of Kaptuch was prepared for burial yesterday. The dead man had deposited all of his money in the bank the day before the killing, and after the tragedy about fifty dollars was found on his person.

This is the first murder that has ever happened in Statesboro, and, strange as it may seem, it happened within twenty steps of the Bulloch county jail.

The bloody knife was found by Colonel Albert M. Deal where it had been hidden under a sill of the house after the crime was committed. At first each of the Russians claimed that it was the dead man's knife, and he committed suicide, but this had no weight, and after a lengthy examination the main witness in the case acknowledged that Cassis was the guilty man. He will be tried for murder at the coming October term of the superior court.

The Real Value

If you have headache or neuralgia you want relief; want it quick. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills stop the pain in just a few minutes. But their real value lies in the fact that they leave no bad after effects. They do not create nausea or derange the stomach. Nothing can therefore take the place of Anti-Pain Pills for the relief of headache or other pain.

"Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills do all that is claimed for them in curing headache and neuralgia. I was in Farmington and I had a fearful headache; the gentleman of the house said, 'Take one of my wife's Pain Pills,' and I did, and in less than one-half hour I felt as well as ever. I asked the name of these and he said Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. I purchased a box, and told my family I had found a great prize—something to cure headache. My three daughters also used them. A thousand thanks for such a remedy."

ATLANTA, GA., August 5, 1907.

It is a pity there are not band wagons to accommodate all the political blowhards.

With our farmer authors in the summer season, the mule is mightier than the muse.

The rumbling wheels of the water wagon sound like thunder to the Kentucky colonels.

Let us be charitable, and blame even the usual Cuban outbreak on the hot weather.

The wave of reform that is sweeping over the country may finally reform the reformers.

J. Scott Dagger, a recent entry in the literary lists, is naturally cutting and slashing at the critics.

New York has a "mysterious strangler." Justice seem to be the only thing they strangle openly there.

Foraker has been talking as if he wanted the earth; but he would now be willing to compromise on Ohio.

But what is a fine of $29,000,000 and over to an oil trust that can quickly raise the price—on the poor?

And still the country seems to be at odds as to whether Fairbanks is running for president or for exercise.

And to call Deacon Rockefeller "a lawbreaker," when all along he has said he has "kept the law and the prophets!"

"The trusts must go," says a Texas exchange.
Truly; but just now, we've got 'em "a-coming and a-going."

And now a professor of the University of Washington says we know nothing at all about Mars—and Mars only 38,000,000 miles distant!

The biggest snake story of the season comes from Nebraska, but there are certain politicians in Ohio who are telling some pretty big ones.

Think of the spirit of reform that has struck Kentucky, where they tried to lynch a man who had broken the record by thrashing his mother-in-law.

They are keeping Brother Rockefeller under such a hot fire, he must think he has struck that warm hereafter where the blazing holler for the hose.

No wonder those western farmers are burning automobiles that have been scaling fences, demolishing farms, and burning the wind and the woods.

One of the unscientific professors is "certain that hell is in the sun." Well, in the language of the old colored preacher, "Won't that be hot enough for you?"

One of the books announced "for summer reading" is entitled "The Climate of Hell." And the author writes as if he had been there, and speaks with authority.

"The flying machine will soon put the automobile out of business," says a scientific exchange.
And what a fine excuse the high-minded brethren will then have for knocking the stars out of business!

A SHOCK TO STANDARD OIL.

If the decision of Judge Kennesaw Mountain Landis, announced on Saturday in the United States district court at Chicago, in the Standard Oil rebating cases, is sustained by the higher courts, it will arouse in the atrophied trust conscience a salutary respect for law and teach a lesson as to the value of honesty and fair dealing in business that will not soon be forgotten.

The futility of nominal fines in rebate cases, paid without murmur by the railroads, whether such fines are levied against them or against their officers and agents, was clearly recognized by Judge Landis. For each of the 1,462 counts on which the Standard Oil company was found guilty, he imposed the maximum fine under the law, making an impressive total of $29,240,000.

This amount is 131 times as large as the actual money represented by the rebates received, is 50 times the value of the oil carried in the shipments which caused the indictments and is one-third of the total net earnings of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey in the three years during which the illegal operations of the Indiana company were conducted.

This giant Standard Oil corporation has been under court fire before for accepting secret rebates, and the history of the organization shows that its monopoly was built up largely through means of dishonest and unfair discriminations in freight rates.

The fine imposed by Judge Landis is without a parallel in the history of American criminal procedure, and a fine of such magnitude has probably never been imposed by any court in any country.

The extent of the penalties imposed would alone have made the decision memorable, but the severe and withering arraignment of Standard Oil methods and practices has probably never been surpassed in a legal decision.

The evils of rebating by giant corporations which have held themselves above the law and viewed with contemptuous disdain the innocuous fines which rarely represent the earnings of one freight car in one year, are grouped in the comprehensive view of Judge Landis under the one general head of lawlessness and brought down to the level of counterfeiting and stealing, from which they differ only in degree.

The impressions that trusts can defy the laws which control the individual business man; that great combinations of capital are immune from the injunctions as to honesty, justice and fair dealing set down in the moral and the legal code; that the man whose identity and actions are veiled under the title and operations of a corporation can expect immunity from punishment, are blasted by the scathing arraignment of Judge Landis and his application of the law.

After disposing of the cases against the Standard Oil corporation for receiving rebates, Judge Landis directed that a jury be summoned at once to look into the case of the Chicago and Alton, proven by the testimony to have been guilty of granting rebates.

If Judge Landis will carry out his announced determination to institute criminal proceedings against those individuals who have been shown to be guilty of practices in open and shameful violation of the law as to honesty and decency in business dealings, he will have rendered a service to the whole country and deserve the plaudits of all honest men. The actual prosecution of trust magnates on criminal warrantts, such as are sworn out for men "who counterfeit money or steal letters from the mail," will go far toward creating a healthy respect for law and public sentiment. Congress has said to the trusts and their officers, "thou shalt not" do certain things. Daily the answer is being made, "we shall." The duty of the courts under such circumstances is plain.

Judge Landis has placed the country under obligations for new, clear and vigorous interpretations of existing statutes especially as to the extent of the government's authority in the matter of corporate regulation and its jurisdiction over interstate and intrastate lines of railroads.

The final decision of the supreme court on this important judicial opinion will be awaited with more interest than the country has shown in any legal question since the Northern Securities case was up for adjudication.

JOHN SHARP WILLIAMS' VICTORY.

The returns indicate that John Sharp Williams, representative from the eighth Mississippi district, and the tactical leader of the democratic minority in the house of representatives, has defeated Governor James K. Vardaman by a safe majority in the race for the senate.

The campaign throughout was one of practical political sense against demagoguery in its rankest form; sound judgment versus rank protestations. The voters were asked to choose between things accomplished and things promised; between conservatism and fanaticism; between political sense and political vagaries, in short, between statesmanship on the one hand, and rant and pretense on the other.

There could be but one outcome of such an issue. The people of Mississippi, who sent Hernando De Soto Money to the senate, were not prepared to put a Vardaman into his shoes. A state possessing the conservatism, the refinement and the culture of Mississippi was not content to be represented in the highest law-making body in the country by a fire-eater and a fanatic. The senate is not a fit place for vaudeville performances, nor for futile and incendiary speeches.

The modification of the fourteenth and the repeal of the fifteenth amendments are the desire of an overwhelming majority of southern people and southern representatives in congress. Whenever the day comes that measures having this in view may be proposed with any hope of success, able, zealous and sensible democratic statesmen will be found to give their heartiest support.

In the meantime, the talk of repealing these two constitutional amendments is the veriest political buncombe, and yet that is the issue on which Vardaman made his fight, leading his people to believe that he could accomplish what he knew to be impossible.

As a representative, John Sharp Williams has shown judgment and discretion. He is an alert, active, resourceful and aggressive leader; he rarely misses an opportunity to score on the floor and has exhibited a capacity for leadership and a mastery of parliamentary tactics which have made him a power in the house. Mr. Williams has been reelected to the sixtieth congress, which meets in December, and will undoubtedly be reelected leader by the democratic minority. His term of office as senator does not begin until March 4, 1911, at which time Senator Money will retire. Mississippi appreciates the beauties of being beforehand.

Governor Vardaman, after his spectacular term as governor, during which he has striven to exaggerate before the whole country the attributes of demagogue and poseur, will probably take his untimely "bill of repeal" and his crumpled senatorial aspirations, "fold them in the lavender sheets of memory, wrap them in the brown paper of experience and file them away in the archives of the might have been."

WHERE WARD POLITICS ARE NOT WANTED.

An official whose duty it is to manage and conduct the routine business of a governmental institution, such as a system of public schools, the department of health and others of like nature, should be primarily and directly responsible for the proper and efficient performance of that duty to a supervisory authority which may at any time take such action as may be necessary to give the people the best possible service.

The observance of this fundamental principle of municipal as well as other forms of government, becomes practically impossible in cases where this class of officials is chosen subject to the whims and caprices of ward politics.

Atlanta recently had this fact very forcibly impressed upon her citizens in the case of the heads of two departments, chosen by popular vote, who indulged in a personal dispute as to their respective duties in the matter of keeping the city's streets in proper repair and holding the street pavement contractors to strict accountability for their work. Had council been the electing power in these cases, there would have been no question as to the particular share of responsibility to be borne by each, and the city's interests would not have fallen into danger.

The mayor and members of the city council are chosen by the people. Let the voters see that they put good strong men in these places, and hold them to accountability for the success or failure of each department of the city government. Can they be expected to bear the full weight of this responsibility if they have no voice in naming any of the departmental heads, no power to direct or to remove for cause?

Every voter should go to the polls on Wednesday with a determination to defeat the plan which strikes at municipal safety and threatens municipal decline—which puts the public school system in politics.

When you go to the polls on Wednesday see that your ballot as cast reads: "Against popular vote to elect."

This does not mean that you vote against election by the people of those officials directly responsible to the people, and who should be so elected, but that you vote for the continuation of Atlanta's prosperity and growth under a system which has been tried and tested in the power to conduce to those great ends.

It will mean that you vote against the proposition to put the public schools in politics.

Boll Weevil in Mexico.

Durango, Mexico, August 4.—Consternation reigns among cotton planters of this state on account of the appearance in the fields i the Cuecamo district of what is generally supposed to be the boll weevil. The pest multiplies with great rapidity and the crops are being completely destroyed.

Paying Through the Nose.
(From Notes and Queries.)

"Paying through the nose" is to be indirectly swindled in a transaction or to pay an exorbitant price for a thing in consideration of long credit. A variant is " to be bored through the nose," "bored" here having the meaning of cheated, deceived:

At this instant he bores me with some trick.—"Henry VIII," I. i, 128.

One that hath gulled you, that hath bored you, sir.—"Life of T. Cromwell," 1602, II. ii, 103.

And Howell in his "Instruction for Forren Travell" (1650), page 50, "had known divers Dutch gentlemen grosly guld by this cheat (the selling of forged manuscripts to young travelers in Italy), and som English bor d also through the nose this way by paying excessive prices for them."

His Growl.
(From Puck.)

"If I had my way," snarled Farmer Bentover, "I wouldn't merely fine them ding-blistered plutocrats that are bullying and hectoring and oppressing the public; I'd imprison 'em, not in penitentiaries or dark dungeons, but in hideous cozy-corners filled with sofa pillows, and especially geese ere new fangled leather ones, confound 'em!"

WITH THE LEGISLATORS

Harrowing!
(From The Rome Tribune.)

Just think of it. Suppose the Georgia legislature should pass a bill to abolish Coosa river catfish.

Atlanta Outdone.
(From The Rome Commercial.)

Atlanta seems to be hacked, the legislature has completely outstripped her, in the matter of freaks and doing fool things generally.

A Possible Excuse.
(From The Americus Times-Recorder.)

Maybe it is the hot weather that is responsible for some of the bills being introduced at Atlanta.

Fierce!
(From The Americus Times-Recorder.)

"Silly twaddle and expensive floundering" is the way The Milledgeville News refers to a lot of the legislative proceedings at Atlanta.

Needs Looking After.
(From The Brunswick Journal.)

If there ever was a body in the world that needed some good injections of sound common sense it is the one now posing in Atlanta as the law-makers of the state.

A Peacherine Bunch.
(From The Americus Times-Recorder.)

We have certainly got a peacherine bunch of legislators at Atlanta. It is now proposed to make every man or woman who thinks of marrying get a certificate as to physical condition. If this sort of thing continues Georgia will be a good state to move out of.

Like Old Times.
(From The Augusta Chronicle.)

If the shades of the dead could have looked into the house Wednesday the house of York might have recalled the days of the war of the roses.

One Consolation.
(From The Americus Times-Recorder.)

There is one consolation. There is nothing in the bill to prevent a man from carrying a pint in his hip pocket.

A New Name.
(From The Bainbridge Searchlight.)

A man has introduced a bill in the Atlanta menagerie providing for separate circus tents, and The Thomasville Times-Enterprise returns thanks that so far the colored brother is allowed to eat his watermillion in peace.

A Difficult Job.
(From The Tifton Gazette.)

To drink ten barrels of beer at a free barbecue and then pass a straightout prohibition law, and to carry in his pocket a railroad attorney's pass while he votes with one hand for a stringent anti-pass law and with the other collects a 10-cent mileage from the state, are two examples of consistency only the Georgia solon can carry through with credit.

What It Needs.
(From The Blakely Reporter.)

It was a "flare back" from one of the guns that caused the explosion on the battleship Georgia. Pity some kind of a flare back don't explode the present session of the Georgia legislature.

SOME WEATHER TIPS

Thankful.
(From The Macon News.)

After the heat comes the cool. Thank the Lord.

Prominent Position.
(From The Augusta Tribune.)

The mercury is at the top of the column next to reading matter these days.

Not for Him.
(From The American Times-Recorder.)

The poet of The Louisville Courier-Journal sings that the girl for him is the sort that cuddles up to you. Not this kind of weather, Mr. Poet.

Not in the Running.
(From The Augusta Chronicle.)

Macon announces that the heat record was broken the other day. Pshaw, we have broken so many heat records in Augusta this summer that we cease to keep count.

A Hot Trio.
(From The Brunswick News.)

With this hot weather, the legislature and a winning baseball team all doing business at the same time, Atlanta people are certainly kept busy.

A Shooting Offense.
(From The Brunswick News.)

The legislature ought to pass a bill making it a penitentiary offense for one to ask "Is it hot enough for you?" when the mercury is registering 100 degrees.

Beyond Human Endurance.
(From The Rome Tribune.)

Atlanta has the hot spell and the legislature. This is a little more than human endurance should be required to stand.

A Warm Combination.
(From The Brunswick News.)

Bryan and Hughes are both going to speak at the Atlanta fair in October. Well, with two such warm members here's hoping for cooler weather.

Where the Trouble Lies.
(From The Savannah Press.)

The hot weather is having a bad effect on The Tampa Tribune. It asks in capital type, "Is Florida in a state of anarchy?" Indeed, not; it is simply a state of perspiration.

Went Them One Better.
(From The Augusta Tribune.)

The hot sun cooked an egg on the street, in Augusta, but Atlanta went us one better and hatched a brood of chickens out of a box of eggs being hauled on a dray.

A Suggestion.
(From The Columbus Enquirer-Sun.)

If eggs can be boiled in the sun on the sidewalks in Augusta, it should be possible to barbecue meat with the sun's rays in Atlanta.

The Next Announcement.
(From The Cartersville News.)

Augusta fried an egg on the streets in the hot sun. Atlanta has been hatching chickens by the same agency. Next thing we will hear of will be Brasstown welding metal at the village pump.

All the Same to Him.
(From The Chicago Tribune.)

"Uncle George, you're awfully rich, aren't you?"

"Well, my boy, I am in what you might call comfortable circumstances."

"When you want to buy anything, uncle, it doesn't make any difference to you whether it costs $5 or $50, does it?"

"Er-no, Henry; when I have to spend $5 it hurts me about as bad as if it were $50."

Reflections of a Bachelor.
(From The New York Press.)

You have to sell advice to make anybody believe it is worth following.

A rich man never has to spend money the way a poor man does to prove it.

It's very surprising to kiss a girl in the dark when you think she is somebody else.

The way to have a woman agree with you about how to bring up children is not to be married to her.

A woman calls a man a good husband when she is very fat, but he always speaks of her as his little girl.

OPEN LETTER TO COUNCIL ABOUT THE HOLLY PUMP

Reuben Arnold, attorney for the Holly Pump Company, has written an open letter to city council about the purchase of a pump for the city waterworks department. Mr. Arnold states that he favors the Longino resolution, calling for the appointment of a committee and the selection of an expert to determine the matter.

The letter is as follows:

Editor Constitution: As attorney for the Holly Company, I have written the following open letter to the mayor and council, which I request you to publish:

"To the Mayor and General Council of Atlanta:

"In the selection of a pump for the waterworks system, a mistake will likely cost the city much more money than the price of either pump, and is liable to result in having no pump at all.

"Upon the one side is offered by the Holly Company a standard vertical, triple expansion pump, used in practically every large city in the union for such high and variable pressure as the city of Atlanta requires. Three pumps of the same make are already in use at the Atlanta waterworks, and have given complete satisfaction. They are not experiments. They are as much standard goods as Baldwin engines, Parker guns, or any other equally well recognized manufactured article of high type in its particular line.

"It would seem that the officials of the city waterworks department should be at least listened to in this matter, and council should not set up its own judgment hastily and without investigation. It is readily conceded that it would not do to take the statement, without caution, of any man who is undertaking to sell his wares. For this very reason, therefore, the city council should go slow in setting up its own judgment as to a matter of which it has no expert knowledge against the deliberate judgment of its waterworks department and council's chosen expert, Mr. Manly, as to the kind of machinery needed for that department.

"In the advertisement for bids by the waterworks department only vertical pumps were called for. Three manufacturers of vertical pumps made bids, and that of the Holly Company was the most advantageous for the city.

"No call was made for bids by the manufacturers of centrifugal pumps. The bid by Mr. Hurt's company is entirely outside of the call made by the waterworks department for bids. It would seem that if any centrifugal pump is to be selected, all reputable manufacturers who make this type of pump should be allowed to come in and make a bid. Only Mr. Hurt's company has appeared and that without invitation. I am informed that there are many other manufacturers of centrifugal pumps in this country, who do business upon a much larger scale than Mr. Hurt's company, and who could doubtless throw much light on what the proper cost of such a pump would be. It doubtless never occurred to the other manufacturers of centrifugal pumps to make a bid, because the function which this pump was to perform in keeping up high and variable pressure for the city of Atlanta, was entirely outside of what centrifugal pumps are accustomed to do; but certainly, if council is wedded to the idea of a centrifugal pump, it would be but fair to advertise for bids from all the manufacturers of centrifugal pumps, and see if a much better bid, both as to price and terms than that made by Mr. Hurt's company cannot be secured.

Does City Want Experiment?

"But does the city want to experiment upon a centrifugal pump? It was stated that the city of Brooklyn had one which was giving satisfaction. The telegram sent to Dr. Taylor indicated that the only centrifugal pump which the city of Brooklyn had was one which furnished 6,000,000 gallons of water, and that the other one, which was to furnish 20,000,000 gallons, had not yet been completed, and was only an experiment. I am informed that Dr. Taylor has since received a letter from the Brooklyn authorities to the effect that the 6,000,000 gallon pump was more or less an experiment with them and has not come up to the guarantee made by the manufacturer and has only been used for pumping water into a standpipe under practically steady head and that the 20,000,000 gallon centrifugal pump now being erected in the city of Brooklyn is for temporary use to pump into reservoir, while four vertical triple pumps are being installed therefore, this illustration from Brooklyn throws no light on the subject, because Atlanta needs a 20,000,000 gallon pump, and a satisfactory test with the 6,000,000 gallon pump on steady pressure is very far from showing that the 20,000,000 gallon pump on high and variable pressures, would be equally satisfactory.

"Even if it be said that the city of Brooklyn is now experimenting on centrifugal pumps, and that if Brooklyn is willing to experiment on such a pump Atlanta might try it, the answer that this is not a sound argument. Brooklyn might be making a mistake. Many municipalities and individuals experiment with things which are absolute failures and lose much money thereby. A municipality which is large and rich, and whose coffers are overflowing with money might well be a leader in the field of experiment; but a city like Atlanta, with only enough money for absolute needs, cannot afford to buy anything which time has not established as a safe investment. Atlanta can run no training school for scientists, and and cannot afford to experiment on pumps for the benefit of the pump fraternity.

"Expert Maury, who was suggested by Captain Clayton, and who is a fair man, notwithstanding the unjust attacks made upon him, recommends the purchase of the Holly pump. By whose advice must the council go if not its chosen experts? If it disregards wholly the advice of the officials of the waterworks department, will it also disregard the advice of its selected expert? Mr. Quillian says that Expert Maury was in a hurry, and did not make a satisfactory investigation. The letter of Mr Maury does not bear out Mr. Quillian's contention. Is the case altered? It shows a careful analysis of the entire situation. Mr. Quillian says that in his second letter Mr. Maury made some changes from his first figures. It occurs to us that this shows he is a reasonable man, and if convinced of error he is willing to admit it. Wise men will change, but fools will not. The changes in his figures were evidently made at the instance of the centrifugal pump people, because they were changes which made the figures on cost and operating expense appear slightly more in their favor than the first report. Certainly there can be no complaint of his abundant fairness to the centrifugal pump, because he is well known to have been an advocate of that type of pump for such low pressure work as it can do and so stated in his report.

About Price of Pump.

"It is said, however, that Mr. Hurt's pump will cost something like $90,000 less than the Holly pump. Expert Maury's figures do not bear out this contention. Maury's figures show that, considering both investment and operation, there is little difference in cost. However, concede for the sake of argument, that Mr. Hurt's pump will cost $90,000 less. Shall we buy an unfit pump simply because it is cheap? Mr. Hurt's company agrees, it is said, to build a pump and allow the city of Atlanta to experiment with it for a given time, and if the experiment appears satisfactory, the pump is to be taken by the city, and if it appears unsatisfactory the city is to reject it. The centrifugal pump will cost in round figures $115,000 and likely more. It will require eight months to build it and likely more, because few such jobs are completed in contract time. Suppose it requires four months additional to give it a substantial test, and suppose, at the end of that time, the city rejects it. Thus twelve months in the effort to secure a pump will be lost, and the city will be as much without a pump at the end of twelve months as it is today. But does anyone believe for a moment that Mr. Hurt's company, after expending $115,000 in erecting this pump, would allow the city to reject it without a lawsuit that would probably last through years? I believe that the city would be kept in hot water for five years. Boards of arbitration would be appointed, experts would be selected. The issue as to whether the test was satisfactory would be discussed pro and con. No contract, however strongly drawn, could avoid disputes of this kind. It is said to be a centrifugal pump run by a steam turbine. It might take weeks or months to discover whether the pump or the turbine was satisfactory. It will thus be seen at a glance that the city will be pulled into an experiment that is likely to cost $100,000 to somebody, and produce no results. Why experiment with it at all if all well posted men say it won't do the work?

"Mr. Hurt, in his letter admitted that he knew of no centrifugal pump of the sort he proposed to build which was doing the work proposed to be done by this pump in Atlanta. Should not this argument be conclusive? Would all the progressive cities of this union overlook this centrifugal pump, if it could not do the work, and was so much cheaper? Has Alderman Quillian just discovered this wonderful adaptability? If so, he should be given all credit for his wonderful discovery.

"The correspondence of the waterworks department upon this subject with the various municipalities of the country is one unbroken expression of opinion, upon the part of these municipalities, that the vertical pump is the only pump which has been tried and found satisfactory; that the centrifugal pumps are mere experiments, and all advise against their acceptance. The city of Atlanta is not so much interested in what is cheap in connection with the waterworks as in what is satisfactory. An uninterrupted supply of good water to this city is too important to justify the rejection of an admittedly perfect piece of machinery in order to plunge into an experiment which is liable to keep a city in turmoil for years, even if a few dollars might be saved.

"While a pump should be purchased, it is not wise for the city to go into this matter blindly. The resolution introduced by Dr. Longino is a wise and proper one. It calls for the appointment by Mayor Joyner of three members of the general council and three citizens as a committee, and for the selection of a high-class expert; all of whom shall pass upon and determine this question. This committee ought to employ the best expert possible. Conditions in other cities should be fully investigated. All the standard manufacturers of both vertical and centrifugal pumps should be conferred with, and under such proceedure a wise and proper result would be reached. Council should not take any hasty action, setting up its own judgment as to one kind of pump rather than another, especially if that action should be the selection of an entire experiment, even though represented by one of our local business men. According to Mr. Quillian himself there has been no satisfactory expert and committee investigation as yet. I believe Mayor Joyner could appoint a committee, and that committee could select an expert, who, acting together, could get at the truth of this matter.

"I write this letter as the attorney for the Holley Pump Company, but I have written it, I trust, in a spirit of fairness, to the end that no hasty action upon this subject should be taken which the city of Atlanta will regret for years to come.

Lockerbie Street.
(By James Whitcomb Riley.)

Such a dear little street it is, nestled away
From the noise of the city and heat of the day,
In cool, shady coverts of whispering trees,
With their leaves lifted up to shake hands with the breeze,
Which in all its wide wanderings never may meet
With a resting place fairer than Lockerbie street.

There is such a relief from the clangor and din
Of the heart of the town, to go loitering in
Through the dim, narrow walks, with the sheltering shade
Of the trees waving over the long promenade,
And flittering lightly the ways of our feet
With the gold of the sunshine of Lockerbie street.

And the nights that come down the dark pathways of dusk
With the stars in their tresses, and odors of musk
In their moon-woven raiments, bespangled with dews
And looped up with lilies for lovers to use,
In the songs that they sing to the tingle and beat
Of their sweet serenadings through Lockerbie street.

O my Lockerbie street! You are fair to be seen—
Be it noon of the day, or the rare and serene
Afternoon of the night—you are one to my heart,
And I love you above all the phrases of art,
For no language could frame and no lips could repeat
My rhyme-haunted raptures of Lockerbie street.

The Guest.

Love, who was guest within my house of life,
Is strangely become master. Yesterday
I bade him welcome, with all honor. Yea,
In poured-out wine with subtle perfumes rife,
In feast, in music did I play my part
Of courteous host who gives his all and beat.
Yet suddenly I trembled, and my guest
Drew sword and laughed and laid it to my heart.
"Now am I master here and thou, my host,
No guest," he said, "but slave to work my will."
And slavelike have I done his bidding still,
Serving him best when that I feared him most.

Ah, never came a gentler guest to be
So pitiless a master. Pity me!

BELIEVE DEFEAT AWAITS MEASURE

Many Oppose Plan for Popular Vote.

ATLANTA MAY BE INJURED

A Large Number of City Officials Must Be Experts, and Men Peculiarly Fitted for Positions—Public Does Not Take Time to Investigate.

It is generally predicted that the effort to get the city officers elected by a popular vote instead of by council and the city boards will be overwhelmingly defeated in the primary Wednesday next.

While a number of citizens think it might be well to elect some of the city officers at the ballot box, yet when they are called upon to say that all should be chosen that way, they will doubtless vote against the proposition.

It is being pointed out that a fire chief might some day be elected because of ward politics who wouldn't know anything more about how to fight a fire than a Hottentot does about making ice; or a man might be placed at the head of the public schools who is in no way qualified to fill the position; or a city electrician might get elected who did not understand the business; or a building inspector might be chosen who could not properly inspect a building.

It is not because the people are not wise enough to elect good officers, it is being pointed out, but because the citizens generally do not take or have the time to investigate the fitness of such men for office, whereas the council members and the boards make a careful and thorough examination of all candidates before an election is held.

How Officials Are Chosen.

The board of education selects a man of long years of school training; the council selects a fire chief who is known to be a fire fighter from experience; the board of electrical control selects an electrician who has undergone a rigid examination; the council picks out a man for building inspector who is known to be a first-class contractor and a man with experience.

The people who might vote upon such candidates, it is said, could not secure the information about these men as is now done by council and the boards.

These are offices which must be filled by experts in their line.

It is believed that a large majority will vote against a wholesale change of the manner of electing all the city ministerial officers.

COUNCIL WILL MEET TODAY

Extension of City Limits and New Pump for Waterworks Will Probably Be Acted on.

The city council meets this afternoon in regular semi-monthly session. Two important matters are expected to come up, the extension of the city limits, and the purchase of a new pump for the waterworks department.

Those who favor the Greater Atlanta proposition will use every possible effort to get council to agree upon the extension last proposed by the special committee, that is, to take in all the territory proposed by the committee of 42 with the exception of East Point, Decatur, and Kirkwood. The new limits would include the section out Peachtree road as far as the railroad bridge; Oakland City, Cook's district, Battle Hill, and Edgewood.

It is believed that if council will act favorably upon the measure today there will yet be time to get the necessary charter amendment from the legislature.

Freight Wreck Blocks Travel.

Columbus, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—Travel on the Central of Georgia Railway Company's Atlanta-Columbus line was blocked yesterday afternoon and last night by a freight wreck near Raymond, Ga., 72 miles from this city. Four freight cars turned over, and it took some 12 hours for the wrecking train to get to the scene and clear the track. The cause of the wreck was not known to the crew. Nobody was hurt, although there was some property damage. The passenger train from Atlanta, due at 9:35 o'clock last night, did not arrive until at an early hour this morning.

Died of Typhoid Fever.

Columbus, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—Peculiarly sad is the death of Miss Annie Belle Tarver, the young 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Tarver, which occurred last night, at Charlotte, N. C., where she had gone to visit her sister, Mrs. Howard M. Wade. She became ill a week ago of typhoid fever and died, despite the tender nursing of her parents, who hastened to her bedside. Her brother, Clifford Tarver, a resident of Charlotte, has been desperately ill of typhoid fever for the past week, and the telegram which told of his sister's death said that his condition was critical.

Augusta, Ga., August 4.—A number of French and Swiss capitalists have organized a company capitalized at $10,000,000, for the development of iron in this section of Georgia and South Carolina. Improvements on the ugusta canal, amounting to several millions of dollars will be asked for by the council Monday night. The request, it is believed, will be granted.

TO PUSH WORK ON RESERVOIR

Mayor Will Call Meeting of Committee This Week.

Mayor Joyner will call a meeting of the special committee on the new reservoir early this week to hear the report of the city engineer. As soon as this report has been received, a resolution will probably be adopted inviting the board of county commissioners to hold a conference with the committee.

The conference will doubtless take place some day this week, as the mayor is very anxious to get the work on the reservoir started as early as possible.

From the figures furnished by the city engineer the council committee will be able to give the county board full information as to what work remains to be done and what the cost will be.

The county commissioners have signified a willingness to cooperate with the city, as far as possible, and assist in completing the reservoir.

According to the city engineer's figures the work can be done within six months by the labor of one hundred convicts.

EIGHT YEARS OLD BOY FOUND AT PONCE DE LEON

Sleeping peacefully on one of the benches near the entrance to the Ponce de Leon Park, little Henry Henderson, 8 years old, was rudely awakened by several employees of the Georgia Railway and Electric Company and appeared to be surprised when told that he was not in bed at home, but blocks and blocks away and in a big, lonely park.

Harry, at police headquarters, after midnight, stated he he did not remember when he left home. The little fellow, who appeared to be bright and well cared for, did not make a very clear explanation of how he came to be sleeping in the park, but the police account for his dazed appearance as being due to the surprise of being at headquarters, and the fact that he had only a few minutes before awakened from sleep. The boy wore no hat, but said that when he left home he had one, and tht it must have been lost in the park.

The youngster declared that his father, Charles Henderson, was a keeper of a market in Decatur street, and that he lived at 94 Kelly street. The boy was brought into the city and turned over to Officer G. T. Butler, who brought him to police barracks. Up to a late hour no calls had been received at headquarters for lost children, but the boy was taken home by Officer West.

SPECULATE ON EFFECT OF BILL.

Talk of Effect of Prohibition on Business at Columbus.

Columbus, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—There is a good deal of speculation as to the effect that prohibition will have in a business way upon the city of Columbus, and in this connection the estimate is made that the people of this city spend in round numbers a half-million dollars a year for whisky and beer. It is claimed that the bulk of this money, under the new order of things, will remain in this city, and will overbalance the loss of revenue to the city from liquor licenses, the probable increase of the city and tax rate, and the adverse affect that prohibition will have, temporarily if no longer, upon rents of certain classes of business property.

There are forty saloons in Columbus, and the direct income derived from them by the city government has been from $20,000 to $25,000 per annum. Closing the saloons will throw a good many stores on the rental market, but it is claimed that, as a store famine has existed here for the past year or two, the elimination of one branch of business will restore normal conditions in respect to rentals of business property. As a matter of fact, during the past year numbers of merchants who had practically decided to locate in Columbus did not come because they could not secure a store, the demand exceeding the supply. For one business structure that was erected recently there were seven applications from business men who wished to lease it.

ADDRESS OF DR. MAYFIELD FEATURE OF THE MEETING

The mass meeting of the Georgia Anti-Tuberculosis League, held at the Grand yesterday afternoon, was well attended and the proceedings were highly enjoyed.

The feature of the mass meeting was the splendid addresses of Dr. W. H. Mayfield, of St. Louis, Mo., secretary of the American Anti-Tuberculosis League; Dr. J. Cheston King, of Atlanta, and Hon. Reuben Arnold, of Atlanta.

The program was a most attractive one and appealed to the general mass of the audience.

Following is the program that was delivered:

Program of Meeting.

Address by president of Georgia Anti-Tuberculosis League.
Solo, vocal—Miss Nellie Nix.
Report of league, by Dr. Louis C. Rouglin, secretary.
Solo, 'celist—Mr. B. Arbuckle.
Solo, vocal—Mr. Solon Druckenmuller.
Address: "The State v. Tuberculosis"—Hon. Reuben R. Arnold.
Trio, violin, 'celo and piano—Mr. Dave Silverman, B. Arbuckle and Professor Holmes.
Address—W. H. Mayfield, of St. Louis, Mo., secretary American Anti-Tuberculosis League.
Address by Dr. J. Cheston King.
Violin Solo—Professor Dave Silverman, Miss Annie Louise Langford, accompanist.

The report of Dr. Louis C. Rouglin was listened to with considerable interest. Dr. Rouglin gave a concise history of the state league and told of the number of bills advocated by the league which stand a good show of passage. He stated that the league has a membership of 600, and more are constantly coming in.

Address of Dr. Mayfield.

In part, the address of Dr. Mayfield was as follows:

"We must first destroy every cow that has tuberculosis and render them immune from the disease. Second, we must render every person now having consumption as harmless to his family and neighbors as a piece of statuary in his home. When these two cardinal principles are established, death from consumption will be the exception instead of the rule as it now is.

"How can all this be accomplished? First, by following up the great scientific discoveries accomplished by scientists, who have made it possible for us to determine that a cow has tuberculosis whether there are physical signs to be seen or not. This is done by injecting under the skin of the cow tuberculin, which if the disease lurks in the body will produce a fever in twenty-four to forty-eight hours. Whole herds can be tested at a very little expense and should be done by each state.

"Tuberculin is produced in a number of different ways. One product is made by growing culture of bacillus tuberculosis in 5 per cent glycerine bouillon for several months. When the culture has reached the desired stage of development, the liquid containing them is reduced by evaporation to one-tenth its original bulk, and filtered through porcelain which removes the bodies of the bacilli previously destroyed by long exposure to steam. The resulting sirupy, amber colored liquid, with a characteristic sweet odor, is tuberculin, and is now ready to be used to determine whether or not the animal has tuberculosis and is also ready for use in the human economy. This is the way the disease can be diagnosed in animal or man before pathological lesions are manifested.

The next great vantage ground for this warfare against tuberculosis is the pasteurization of milk, the process which renders the milk containing the germ of tuberculosis incapable of developing the disease, sterile, in other words. This process or any other like it is of great utility until the disease is stamped out. But, you ask, can this be done? I answer, yes. Heretofore, we have taken no precautions. We have sent our consumptives out on the arid plains of the west where many get well and many die, where few have the hygienic, dietetic and medical treatment required in so grave a disease. Some go out on the ranch to honestly gain a livelihood, they expectorate on the hay and grass, the cattle eat it and take tuberculosis. They are shipped east and the disease spreads. The milk is infected when ulcers are formed in the milk glands of the cow. Not many adults take the disease from drinking the milk, because they produce so much hydro-chloric acid in the stomach that the germ is destroyed, but the children by the thousands are slain right and left because they have not this production of acid sufficient to destroy the germ. By the efforts already put forth in New York city, the death rate of the children has been reduced 50 per cent, which is an evidence of what can be done when every living being is aroused to the danger of the disease and the implements of prevention at hand. But you say, how are we to render the person now afflicted with the disease harmless to his wife, children and neighbors? Allow me to answer, first, don't allow a particle of expectoration to escape from the mouth except in a cup suited for the purpose. This sputum is destroyed easily by ordinary concentrated lye, a tablespoonful is sufficient. Convince such patients of all the dangers of infected table utensils, napkins, etc., and the careless disposal of all secretions of the body.

"This brings again the question of that pleasant process of kissing, but too many dangers lurk in its wake to pass it by lightly. Allow me to relate one story to illustrate its danger. In a lovely home in the southland a beautiful child adorns the home of a very prominent family, the very delight of the father and mother and all who know it. They are all healthy people, no consumption in the family. The most healthful colored nurse in the community is employed to care for this lovely child. She wheels it in the park where the birds sing and the squirrels leap from bough to bough. But she thinks of her aunty, who is dying of consumption on a narrow street hard by the park. She must wheel the baby around that way to ascertain the condition of her relative, who is dying slowly with consumption. The baby carriage is stopped at the door and the nurse enters. The aunty inquires as to where her niece is working. 'Oh, I am nursing Mr. and Mrs. ——— beautiful baby.' The patient rises from her couch and says: "How delightful; why, I nursed that man when he was a baby, and I was well like you. Bring it in. Oh, how beautiful; just like its papa when he was a baby. Bring the dear little thing to me; let me kiss it as I kissed its papa years ago." I need not carry this story further. The beautiful, healthy baby soon develops what the laity calls kernels in its neck. The lymph glands, in other words, are affected, sore throat, fever, emaciation, night sweats, marasmus, pale, hacking cough, a wistful and anxious expression. The scene is closed, the white hearse carries the remains to its last resting place. Now, were I to have gone to this home, taken from my surgical grip the scalpel and severed the carotid arteries, causing its immediate death, I would have been hanged before the going down of the sun, which would have been what I deserved. Yet, the public is ignorantly saying, we must continue to kiss the baby even if they are sick. Why, do you know that a mayor of one of our cities gave a newspaper interview on the subject of "Baby Kissing" the day after we discussed this subject before the American Anti-Tuberculosis League at Atlantic City last June, saying 'I don't know who this Dr. Mayfield is, or whether he has ever had the pleasure of children in his home, but I was at a Sunday school picnic today and kissed about six hundred children.' The next morning before I emerged from my room four newspaper reporters were seeking an interview as to my reply. I could only say God pity the mayor and take care of the children. If one of the children of the six hundred had a disease germ on its lips many others could have been subjected to the disease, transmitted from the mayor's lips.

"Think of one hundred and seventy-five million germs being caught on the glass slide from a bubble like a coap bubble blown up against it, and you have some idea of the danger of the transmission of the disease from lip to lip. Why have I gone into these details? I have done it for a purpose: that every man, woman and child may read and learn of the disease, of the many ways it is transmitted, of the many ways it may and can be prevented, and to make known the fact to the most unlearned that it is transmitted from patient to patient; that it is a preventable disease; that it is a curable disease; that with proper care can be handled in any home without giving it to other members of the family. As surely as wheat can be grown in one field, oats in another, rye in another, without the different soils being infected by the different grains unless the seeds are planted there. The dogfennel, the Canada thistle or any other like growth will never spring up in your yard unless suitable soil is found there for their development, and then never will such a plant show itself until the seed is dropped there. Exactly so with tuberculosis.

"When the minute men at Concord heard the gun whose report was heard around the world, they lined up in battle against the foe which threatened their hearths and homes. And so we, their descendants, having heard the alarm from all over the world, are now marshaling our forces to repel the attacks of the most deadly and insidious foe that mankind has ever known; a pitiless monster which invades our homes, and, respecting neither age nor station, ruthlessly tears away from us our nearest and dearest.

Many Diseases Beaten.

"Smallpox, diphtheria and yellow fever are well nigh vanquished as epidemics. This has been done by the great army of the people under the leadership of the medical profession. The American Anti-Tuberculosis League is organized to work by states, counties, cities, towns, villages and families. Every one of these subdivisions should rouse itself to activity in this great cause and pour out its best efforts in thought, action and money to aid in the extermination of the foe.

"In the years past, this conflict has been relegated to the medical profession, but the time has come when the people must hold up its arms as did the men of old the arms of the prophet, lest it succumb under the increasing might of the enemy. That the people are becoming aroused is shown by the great awakening that has taken place within the past five years among all classes of people. States and municipalities all over the country are discussing measures of defense and are establishing sanitoria. The time is ripe now for us to take a forward movement with a battle cry of such penetrating earnestness that every person in this broad land of ours will be roused to a sense of individual responsibility and lend his best effort to the furtherance of the cause. Heretofore it has been the custom to leave to th epreacher and the priest the responsibility of building hospitals, and well have they performed their part; but they, too, are raising the Macedonian cry, 'Come over and help us.'

"In response to this cry the league has so ordered its plans and asks states, counties, municipalities, churches, lodges and benevolent and social organizations to join hands in providing in every community a refuge where these unfortunate fellow beings can be placed under the most favorable conditions for recovery, and the menace of their presence to their fellows at the same time be removed. Let this refuge be in the shape of a building adapted to the end in view, where the location is suitable; or let a fund be used, where the location is unfavorable, in sending the sufferers to proper sanitariums.

"We have adopted plans for a fireproof, reinforced concrete building which can be kept in an aseptic condition unfavorable to the development of germs. The plans of such a building which can be maintained with little expense and great safety, as shown on photograph. The plan; one section of eight rooms can be erected for $2,000. Each room is entirely separate, yet has two doors and two windows, a skylight and a fireplace, the entire building being one piece of concrete with all drainage outside the building, pipes being protected with latest improved safety traps and so arranged as to be thoroughly flushed and cleansed as often as required. Sections of such buildings may be added indefinitely, as occasion demands. It will be seen that one nurse may be in sight of four patients and not be in either of the rooms. It will also be seen that half sections of four rooms may be rented at a moderate price to a man with consumption. He can occupy one room alone, the nurse another, and his wife and family the other. The danger of accumulating debts and consequent failure will be obviated by putting up only such buildings as the present requires and adding to them as occasion demands.

"I heartily advocate pure air, free from the dust, smoke and impurities, inseparable from a dense population; (2) unlimited fresh, bracing air, with suitable protection against cold and stormy winds; (3) location on a warm, dry and well-drained soil; (4) thorough ventilation both day and night, regardless of cold weather. Above conditions are found in perfection in many parts of the United States, and they can be approximately made almost anywhere by common-sense management in the construction and arrangement of these small buildings, which are safer and better for the purpose than large ones.

"Give them the best nutritious food, good nursing and frequent mouth and throat cleansings, sprays of dioxygen followed up with 25 to 30 per cent beechwood creosote with essential oils as deeply inhaled as possible from a nebulizer.

"Disseminate literature, by all possible means teaching the nature of the disease and the importance of hygienic measures in the home. Urge importance of legislation in all states directed toward the rigid inspection of milch cows by qualified veterinarians everywhere. Above all, teach optimism. There is nothing so contagious as or more dangerous than fear. Call attention to curability of disease and allude to the proof as shown in the lung cicatrices so often shown over the post-mortem and dissecting table. Urge teaching of nature of disease, causes and preventive hygiene in the public schools along same lines as the effects of alcohol are now taught. Interest all organizations of women in the study of tuberculosis. With such care and precaution twenty-five years will find the great white plague a matter of history.

"The woman's auxiliary we believe will crown its head with glory by leading this to a successful issue. Clinics should be opened in every city, with a laboratory for tests and Pastorization of milk.

"New York has reduced the death rate among children 50 per cent during the last year.

"St. Louis has one laboratory and Pastorization plant and seven stations for the distribution of Pastorized milk, at rates free and almost free to the poor babies, and over two hundred physicians send presciptions to mothers for milk free, when sent by P. D. workers for the pure-milk movement.

"We have just completed and opened a $50,000 state hospital at Mount Vernon, Mo., for consumption. This would not have been accomplished without the agitation that has prevailed for the past five years."

ATLANTA SPIRIT TO BE AWAKENED

Mass Meeting of Citizens to Be Called.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ACTS

Executive Committee of Chamber Will Meet Tomorrow Afternoon and Plan Big Mass Meeting in Interest of the City's Welfare.

Tomorrow evening the executive committee of the chamber of commerce will meet and consider the calling together of the citizens of Atlanta for the purpose of rallying around the old cry of "Now, everybody for Atlanta."

The committee will probably name a date and a place for the mass meeting and select the speakers for the occasion.

It is desired that all classes and all interests be represented at the meeting; that short speeches be made along the line that Atlanta must not pause in its onward march because of the new regime under which the march will be made next year when the state prohibition law goes into effect.

All the leading and prominent citizens have declared themselves in favor of a big and rousing meeting to let the world know that the old Atlanta spirit is still alive, and will not falter when an hour comes to test its power and influence.

No Room for "Croakers."

If there are any "croakers," it is said, they must be silenced by a great public demonstration and be made to feel that their croaking is ill-timed and out of place in such a city as Atlanta. Men who have differed with the prohibitionists, and who favored local option instead of a state prohibition law, have already come to the front and placed themselves in line with those who are ready to lay aside all personal feelings and private views, and, putting their shoulders to the wheel, help to keep their city on the road to prosperity and future greatness.

After the big meeting, when citizen meets citizen, it is being predicted, and one asks the other:

"Are you an anti?"

Or:

"Are you a prohi?"

The only reply will be:

"I am an Atlantan."

Only two more days remain for the candidates to "see their friends," for on Wednesday the city primary takes place and Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock the tale will have been told.

It is not believed that a large vote will be polled, as this is what is known as an "off year" in local politics, the year when neither the mayor nor any of the ministerial officers are to be elected. The ticket will contain the names of the candidates for the aldermanic board and the council, and the citizens whose patriotism has caused them to run for positions on the city executive committee.

The people will also vote their convictions on the election of the ministerial officials by popular vote.

The candidates are as follows:

Long Transmission of Electricity.

Columbus, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—The farthest transmission of electrical power developed from the falling waters of the Chattahoochee river at this point yet effected is provided for in a contract just signed by the Columbus Power Company and the Georgia Fertilizer Company. The Georgia Fertilizer Company is building a large new plant several miles east of Columbus, and yesterday its president and general manager, John T. Fletcher, signed a contract for the installation of electric power there. The new factory is five or six miles from the plant on the river where the electric current is generated.

ANTI-LOBBYING BILL IN SENATE

Upper House Adjourned Last Friday With Clean Calendar.

This morning at 11 o'clock the senate will be called to order by President Akin. The senators adjourned on Friday, and took Saturday and Sunday as their holidays in order that they might steal a visit to their homes.

Last week the senate transacted a considerable amount of business, passing several important general bills, among them being the Felder disfranchisement bill and the Dobbs bill requiring all railway companies to furnish cars immediately on demand to those engaging in the fruit business.

Up to this time there have been introduced in the senate in all 140 bills. Of this number almost a majority have been passed by the senate and have been transferred to the house, asking for their concurrence. When the senate adjourned on Friday, the calendar was clean, all house bills having been read the second time, so when the solons meet this morning they will be ready to take up new business.

During the week the Williford bill relating to the election of county school commissioners for counties from residents of different counties will probably be considered, and the house bill introduced by Seaborn Wright, of Floyd, known as the "anti-lobbying bill," will also be passed upon.

Business men who cannot get away for the summer can live at the Sweetwater Park Hotel and look after business interests in Atlanta. Cheap monthly ticket. Ideal schedules. Trains on time.

During the hot weather you should eat less solid foods and drink more of liquid foods, which require less energy for their digestion and assimilation.

SOLVE QUESTION BY LOCAL OPTION

Alabama Decides Upon This Way to Oust Saloons.

WILL HAVE EARLY CLOSING

And Will Prevent Shipment of Whisky Into Dry Counties Thought That Whisky Will Be Ultimately Run Out of State.

Montgomery, Ala., August 4.—(Special.) With the signing of the early closing bill by the governor, a duty which he has performed, the liquor fight in the present session of the legislature, and probably for several years to come, has been ended. This much seems certain. The prohibition bill on the house calendar can not get out now before adjournment, and the one or two little measures that are pending will all be signed, though they are not a part of the general scheme. These latter include a prohibition of any druggist selling more than four ounces a day to any one man on prescription and hop jack measures that apply almost wholly to Jefferson county.

It seems to have been agreed among the anti-whisky forces that three measures were to be pushed—local option by counties, prevention of shipments to prohibition territory, and the early closing proposition. While there was much of a fight against all of them the greatest protest came from business men, who feared that the anti-shipping bill would simply mean the transfer of the trade to other states that could not be restrained because of the interstate commerce laws. Because of this many men who really are against liquors being sold were opposed to the measure. However, with the adoption of prohibition in Georgia this will be very much minimized.

Local Option.

The local option measure, comprising features for the elimination of not only saloons, but dispensaries as well, is the vehicle upon which the anti-saloon forces hope to roll the liquor traffic out of the state. With the county as a unit almost any county can be voted dry if there is a pretty good element in the cities and towns for it. For instance, it is thought that with the anti-liquor vote which could be had in Montgomery city and the heavy prohibition sentiment in the country the saloons could be voted out easily if the temperance advocates decided to get very busy. The same thing is so of Birmingham, Huntsville, the Decaturs and others, it is thought.

The antis are thought to be looking to this sort of thing, and will begin as soon as the legislature is over to build up sentiment to eliminate the fierly liquid and the product of the hop from many of the counties, though the understanding is that the first effort will be to get the smaller counties dry berore tackling the larger, for the prestige it will give them, and also to restrict the territory of the wholesale business. After this is done the larger cities will have their cases attended to, it is reported.

Early Closing Law.

Out of the early closing law the temperance people expect to get much that will tend to discourage the social feature of drinking. They will try in this way to have the congregating idea taken away, and make it impossible to use the saloons as loafing places. There are not more than half a dozen towns in the state but will have to close at 7 o'clock. Birmingham, Montgomery and Mobile will stop at 9, while there may two or three—none, according to the last census, in fact—that will get in the 8 o'clock class.

The anti-shipping bill will be the hardest of all to enforce. It prohibits shipments to territory where the sale has been voted out. However, it can not keep other states from sending it in, and, it is understood, that many Alabama wholesale houses in this state will go just over the state line and open shipping offices, paying the wholesale license in the state selected for such stations. Of course, this will have a tendency to make the law less effective than it would otherwise be. It is well known that dealers in other states are gleefully looking to a rich harvest in Alabama.

If the druggist bill is signed it will mean that much of the Sunday drinking will be cut out, as the toper often gets his drink in this way, and the prohibition of hop jack will apply almost exclusively to the mining section.

To Enforce the Laws.

Best posted men say that one reason of the feeling against the saloon men at this time is the fact that as a class they do not endeavor to keep the laws. They, in fact, seem to regard the law as made to be broken in many cases, and the result is a feeling in many cases against them that would not be if they had acted differently. Many men in the business deplore this, and say that from it they see the falldown of their business.

This is illustrated in the lack of observance of the Sunday laws. There is not a city in Alabama where they are enforced, say the temperance men. Policemen, in some instances, wink at the violation, and in others the citizens go along and allow the laws broken, without thinking that they are in a sense charged with the keeping of them. The fact that doctors give prescriptions for whisky shows that they do not appreciate the keeping of the statute, and so there is carelessness all along the line.

But the members of the Anti-Saloon League give it out now that not only have they aided to get the laws, but they are going to see that they are kept. Brooks Lawrence, superintendent for Alabama, said the other day that just as they had worked to have regulation adopted, just will they work to have the violations kept down and punished. So it seems that the saloon man is going to have to keep the laws now being passed or get in jail.

Railroad Situation.

There is nothing new in the railroad situation. So far as is known here, the Southern railway is running along as usual and does not seem to know that it has been put out of the state. It may get a jolt and find it out too late to get along well, or it may rock along until there is some sort of a compromise that will take the matter to the courts in a peaceable way. Secretary of State Julian is without information today further than already printed, and will likely not have anything more until some overt act brings the company agents or officers into the courts of this or some other county.

Two ideas are discussed; one that the railroad lawyers were surprised and ought to have had the act enjoined as they did the others, and another is that there was a deliberate violation on the part of the agent of the road in order to bring about a crisis. In the first case the route of relief will likely be in the federal court; in the latter action will come in the arrest of some of the officers of the company. This would take place on the line of road somewhere, possibly in Talladega. In fact, there is a belief that Talladega has been selected as the place from which to make the fight.

Supervision Bill.

The Kirby bill for better supervision of the country schools, which passed the house this week, is thought to have good show to make its way through the senate. State Superintendent of Education Harry C. Gunnells thinks it a good bill. Not what he would have had, possibly, but a long step in the right direction. He hopes it will pass. It provides that much of the time of the superintendent must be given to the schools, and that he must be a teacher with as good as a third grade certificate.

The bill to purchase the big picture of General John B. Gordon has been adversed by the senate finance committee. The picture is a very handsome one, and has been in the lobby of the capitol for some time. There will be an effort before long to secure the painting for the state in some other way, it is said.

The bill passed by the senate to enumerate the old confederate soldiers is regarded as one of the best passed at the session. At this late day it has become very necessary that the names and addresses of these old veterans be kept at the capitol.

Daniel Water For the Stomach

Daniel Mineral Water acts gently upon the Liver, keeps the digestion healthy, and thus lessens the danger of malarial and other fevers. The mineral ingredients it contains keep the Stomach toned up and the Kidneys flushed, thereby safely overcoming or entirely avoiding the diseases peculiar to the sickly summer season.

For Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Constipation, and all Stomach, Bladder or Intestinal troubles, Daniel Water is far superior to any on the market. It is an alkaline—not a salt or sulphur water. Is pleasant, palatable and light, and its good effects upon the general health are noticeable from the beginning of its use.

If you are in doubt about the water you are drinking and want an absolutely pure spring water, order a case of Daniel Water and avoid all danger of taking into your system the germs of Typhoid and other dangerous fevers.

THEATERS.

At the Casino.

Vaudeville at the Ponce de Leon this week will be one of the rarest entertainments the Atlanta theatergoers have been treated to. The bill is declared to be one of the strongest combinations of vaudeville talent the summer theater's management has gotten together. It is full of variety, originality and of the sort of comedy so well liked in Atlanta.

It has been demonstrated within the past few seasons that this class of attraction is decidedly acceptable in the summer season, and the strength of the Casino combinations recently has been more than sufficient to draw the largest gatherings of decidedly representative people.

The bill that commences on Monday night, an engagement of a week, will include the regular matinee performances, and with the assistance of the fifteen skilled solo musicians under the direction of Orchestra Director Matthiessen, all of the acts will be afforded a better opportunity to score strong impressions.

Mlle. Ameta, the dashing dancer, whose success last week proved to be such a wonderful drawing card, will continue to be the feature of the program. She is a beautiful woman, possessing beautiful costumes and the grace and charm to display the wardrobe, and a wonderful ability as a spectacle dancer. Her mirror effect is one of the dazzling successes of all vaudeville.

The Burrows-Travis Company will offer a new comedy sketch, introducing three vaudeville stars. One of these performers is a juvenile comedian of rare promise. He is one of the most eccentric dancers in all the profession, and his songs are capital comedy successes. This act is conceded to be one of the strongest of advanced vaudeville.

Golden and Hughes, the minstrel men, will offer a "black race" comedy singing, dancing and talking specialty. This duo has been identified with minstrel successes for a number of seasons, and their recent advent into vaudeville attracted interest wherever they have appeared. They are original comedians, and both are clever.

Inza and Lorella, the grotesque acrobatic comedians, who very recently came to America to fill engagements with one of the big circus combinations, have been engaged to take care of the athletic part of the program and a better selection could not have been made. These acrobats are decidedly original in their stunts, and will be a big feature at some time during the coming season, with a circus combination of exceptional worth.

Misses Gertrude and Cathrine Bruce, who have been prominent in the musical maiden department of the Wells, Dunne & Harlan forces, and who recently appeared in Atlanta with the Grapewin Company, will offer a specialty of song and dance. The girls will introduce three of the newest combinations of popular songs, and their dainty dancing promises to be quite an important feature of the bill.

A series of moving pictures, the newest of the recent successes will fill a number on the bill. This part of the program is always of interest when the subjects are good, and it is declared that the new pictures will hold a lot of interest.

Seats for any Casino performance are obtainable from the Bijou box office until 6 p. m. daily. No reservations can be made in advance after that hour, but when a reservation is guaranteed the business office at Ponce de Leon will arrange to have seats held.

Pastime Theater.

The children of Atlanta have a treat in store for them this week when the vaudeville team of Harrison, West and Harrison, at the Pastime theater, present Master Petit, the child marvel, as the champion boy wooden-shoe dancer in the world. Hardly more than six years old he has two gold medals, which he has won in open competition to retain his title. In addition to the team act he does he will give a number of specialties for the children at the matinees.

Darrow Mitchell, with his clever imitations upon the piano, follows, giving an act that is both entertaining and amusing. He is one of the best rag-time players in the business, and in addition does a song and dance act that is alone worth the price of admission.

Ed Morley, the man with the comical legs. The eccentric dancer, who has made hundreds laugh by his queer antics, has been booked for a week, and begins his engagement this afternoon at the matinee. Those lovers of straight and fancy dancing have a treat in store when he bounds upon the stage.

Earl Snow, a very versatile comedian and monologist upon the stage, will introduce his new and novel act, "A Hebrew Monologue." Now when a man such as he characterizes is funny he is about the most humorous and comical person on the stage. The seriousness of his humor makes his audience scream. Mr. Snow's knowledge of Yiddish humor will be fully demonstrated in his sketch.

Miss Annette Stinburne will continue to charm by her sweet illustrated songs. With a change in repertoire each week she grows more popular as the season progresses.

In addition there is a free concert by Baldin's military band in the foyer of the theater every evening at 7 o'clock, when a band of twenty-four instruments plays all of the popular hits of the day. The theater is cooled by electric fans and draught fans, which insures a complete change of fresh air every two minutes.

What is more delightful after a hard day's work than a good meal, an easy chair, a wide piazza, cool breezes and a good cigar? You can get them all at the Sweetwater Park Hotel at Lithia Springs, Ga.

LIQUOR BARRED ON TEXAS TRAINS

If Traveler Drinks from His Bottle He's Liable to Arrest.

Palestine, Texas, August 4.—The first arrest and conviction under the law making it a misdemeanor to drink liquor on a train in this state was made yesterday, when a white man was fined $16 for committing the offense.

The man was coming in on the southbound train, and when a short way out of Palestine took a drink out of a bottle he had in his pocket. While he was drinking a state ranger, who happened to be on the same car, placed him under arrest.

GIVEN BETTER FREIGHT RATES.

Cuthbert Hails With Delight Better Railroad Rates.

Cuthbert, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—The railroads of Cuthbert have announced a new and reduced freight rate to Cuthbert, effective about the middle of this month. This announcement is hailed with delight by all classes of business of the city, especially by the wholesale and retail merchants. The inauguration of these rates places Cuthbert in line with the regular wholesale and jobbing points of the state, and will be instrumental in enlarging her wholesale trade and developing the town as a jobbing center. It will also pave the way for the establishment of some manufacturing enterprises, the organization of which have been held in abeyance, awaiting the putting on of the reduced rates.

CRACKERS HIT THE ROAD FOR A WEEK

Edited by Alex Lynn

BOY WILL WORK TODAY'S GAME

Crackers Have Only Eighteen More Games at Home.

The Team Has Forty-Seven More Scheduled and Large Majority of Them Are Billed for Foreign Soil—Eastern Teams Begin the Good Bye.

Roy Castleton will work the opener against the Barons in Birmingham this afternoon, and as the southpaw is most fit, it will be dangerous going for the clan of Vaughn.

The team left last night, spending the day in Atlanta rather than go over earlier. While only two battles are scheduled in the land of slag there is a postponed affair to be disposed of, and it will be pulled off on Wednesday, an off day, thus making three games altogether in Birmingham.

The entire squad was taken on the trip by Bill Smith, although two of them are out of shape; Rube Zeller is still ailing, and Sid Smith's hand is not quite well, but both of them will be able to break in the game before the week is out, in all probability.

The next place in which the Crackers land will be Nashville, where they begin a series on Thursday. The Dobber bill will be concluded on Saturday, and the Crackers return home for Birmingham, with whom a double header will be played on Monday, the first day of the series. This extra game is the one knocked out by rain when the Barons were here last.

After that series the team leaves for the long trip, going by Montgomery for the last games with an eastern team. Then it will be west for the remainder of the season, for after the trip is finished the western people all come east to play the last games of the campaign.

Season on the Wane.

Verily the season has hit the wane. The Crackers have left just forty-seven games, and majority of these are away from home, twenty-nine being scheduled for foreign soil and eighteen on the home lot. That is the hard proposition we are up against.

The real hard business will come to pass when the team is out west, as there are seven postponed battles with the westerners. Three of these are with Little Rock, and as we are to be in that township only three days, there will be a double-header on each day, if Manager Finn insists on working off all the postponed contests.

The same number of put off contests are due the Memphil, but as Atlanta can stay in Memphis for five days it will be played in a double-header on one of the days the team is sojourning with C. Frank.

The twenty-nine road games include all postponed ones.

History repeated itself in this Montgomery disaster that wound up on Saturday. Last season it was the same way. We had a series with the Climbers in August when the going between the Memphil and Crackers for second place was so tight, and lo, and behold, the Montgomery team which had proved such a fattening antidote for the other teams came here and harpooned the locals in a series of four battles taking three of the four, much to our discomfiture.

They went just about as strong this season getting two out of four games, and as the two they didn't get were ties, it was a clean sweep for the series.

We will not have a chance for revenge on the home grounds again this year, but maybe some amends may be made while the Crackers hesitate in the Alabama capital before going west.

Birmingham Last of East.

The Climbers were one of the last two eastern teams to appear here. Birmingham will be the last next week. We have had a last look at the Dobbers and Climbers, and the next week and a half will be a general goodby among the teams in this part of the country.

The west will come in force just one more time, and then it is all over but cashing in the rag for some one. While we are handicapped by having the most of our doings away, the last stand at home will help a lot if the Crackers can keep their heads up while they are away. That remains to be seen.

GAME FORFEITED, SAYS THE JUDGE

Refuses to Enter Into Controversy With Babb on the Matter.

Little Rock, Ark., August 4.—(Special.) "I positively will not enter into any newspaper controvery with Manager Babb," said President Kavanaguh today, when questioned in regard to the Memphis manager's statement of yesterday. "The rules of the league will be enforced, no matter who they chance to effect. All the teams, including Memphis, are now under the fourteen-man limit."

President Kavanaugh said that Little Rock was under the limit when Memphis played here last week, and there was no chance that the three games that Memphis lost would be thrown out. He stated with usual positiveness that Friday's game between Memphis and Shreveport would count as a victory for the latter.

SMITH IS A GREAT JUDGE OF GOOD BALLPLAYERS

Bill Smith is considered a great judge of baseball flesh by the big leaguers, especially since he landed so many comers this season. It was Bill who tipped off Georgie Suggs to the Detroit Americans in the middle of July, and it was on his recommendation that Jennings purchased the slabman from Babb. Along about July 15 Manager Smith got a telegram from Secretary Navin, of Detroit, asking him for a confidential opinion on Suggs as big league material. Bill wired back that he considered Suggs one of the best in the league and gave his candid estimate of his worth. Jennings then began flirting with Babb and finally made an offer for Suggs. Bill made a big killing this season in landing good things and seems to be endowed with an extraordinary sense of knowing a good man when he sees him. He did not hook a single busted phenom this year.

That crowd Saturday was a record-breaker in its way. The returns show that exactly 5,500 people saw the double bill between Motgomery and Atlanta, and as the Climbers have not heretofore been one of the big drawing cards, the size of the crowd was a surprise. However the fans are turning out in greater numbers than ever for every game.

Bill Smith says they are like a big league congregation in one respect and that is they will not countenance anything but winning. One thing is certain, the usual run of spectators refuses to pull for the home team unless it is in the lead.

George Paskert's wife's mother is very ill and Mrs. Paskert left Saturday for the family home in Cleveland, O. The speedy leftfielder, his wife and child are one of Atlanta's baseball families and have been making their home here since the season opened.

They are doping out a strange case against Hugh Jennings, of the Detroit Americans. It seems that Hugh got hoarse the other day and could not do his usual strenuous coaching on the lines, so got him a large whistle and blew signals throughout a game in New York much to the merriment of the assemblage. Griff objected and O'Loughlin, who was umpiring, benched Hugh and his little tin whistle. The next day Jennings tried the whistle system again and was ejected from the lot by the umps. Since the little tin whistle has reposed in the Tiger bet bag and it is said that the case will come up before the national commission who will decide whether a whistle can be used on the coaching lines.

Tried Before Mayor's Court.

Dawson, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—Henry Smith, Judge Brooks, Will Howard and Jim Coleman, four well known negroes here, who were tried in the mayor's court on the charge of having and keeping spirituous liquors in their possession for purpose of making sale thereof, were all found guilty. Each was sentenced to work 50 days on the streets of the city, or to pay a fine of $50, and also required to give bond to appear at the next term of the city court of Dawson to answer to the charge of selling whisky illegally. The attorneys representing the defendants appealed from the decision of the acting-mayor to the city council, and the cases are to be tried on the 20th inst.

14 INNING GAME AT NEW ORLEANS

Memphis Won Out in Last Round With Two Out.

New Orleans, La., August 4.—Memphis and New Orleans were to have played a doubleheader today, but the first game went fourteen innings for a total of thirty hits, besides some misplays which made fun for an overflow crowd and dragged out the game so that there was not time to complete the second contest. Memphis laid down quite an unusual series of bunts in front of the plate which helped them win. Two were out in the fourteenth when the winning run was batted in. The second game was called on account of darkness at the end of the second inning, with the score 0 to 0. A doubleheader will be played tomorrow.

RIGHT TO LARGE CHEST HAS TIGER TYRUS COBLE

Ty Cobb, the Georgia product, is well thought of by Sam Crane, of The New York Evening Journal. Here is the bouquet the Gotham writer hands him:

Tyrus Cobb, the rightfielder of the Detroit team, is said to be "chesty." He has the reputation among ballplayers of being about the "freshest" youngster that ever broke into the big league, and there are some few old-timers who are fast falling into the sere and yellow of the has-been class who say that Cobb broke his way into big league class with a jimmy.

Well, Mr. Cobb has a perfect right to go around with an abnormal chest expansion. His work yesterday entitles him to strut up and down Broadway with a Tom Sharkey frontage development that even the sailor pugilist would buy drinks for, and that would be going the limit for the boniface of Fourteenth street.

The Detroits played a swell game but Cobb was the swellest player in the whole swell mob. The Tigers sparkled collectively but Cobb threw off individual sparks that made him the feature piece of the entire fireworks. Mr. Cobb sparkled. There was no department of the game that he did not excel at. He led his team in batting; he was a robber on the bases, and the police should have been called out on account of several catches he made in the field.

Cobb is chesty, is he? The remark of the lamented President Lincoln, when told that General Grant drank whisky, is historical, and if Cobb is as chesty as he is credited with being, then there are several of the Yankees who could contract the disease without the least fear of being called on to take an antidote.

In my long experience in baseball I have found it almost invariable that the "chestiest" players are the best that are made. Chestiness denotes confidence, and if that article isn't the thing that pushes a player along and win games then baseball is lawn tennis or bean bag.

Give me the chesty fellows, those who think they are better players than any one else, and they are the ones who succeed in the great big majority of cases.

YACHTING BILL FOR THIS WEEK

Three Events on Water Will Be Pulled Off.

Regatta Will Be Held at Philadelphia, and Other Sporting Events Are Auto Carnival and Speed Contest—The Canada Cup Series Important.

New York, August 4.—Yachting is to have the inning this week, no less than three events in that branch of sports being on the cards—the races for the Canada cup, the annual cruise of the New York Yacht Club, and races off Newport, and the English yachting events off Cowes, Isle of Wight.

Chief of these yachting races is the Canada cup series on Lake Ontario, off Port Charlotte, N. Y., beginning Saturday.

The United States, present holder of the trophy, will be represented by the Hemesoff boat Seneca, sailed by A. G. Hanan; while Canada's challenger, Cawthra Mellock's 27-footer, Adle, will be handled by Canada's greatest small boat sailor, Captain Amelius Jarvis.

At Glen Cove, Long Island, Thursday, the annual cruise of the New York Club will start, about 300 vessels of all classes participating. The feature will be the race off Newport for the king's cup.

Blue Ribbon Races.

At Cowees, the English blue ribbon yachting events will be contested. This year no American boats will be sailed there, although there will be present a large number of steam vessels from this country.

The annual championship regatta of the National Association of Amateur oarsmen of the world will hold on the national course, Schuylkill river, Philadelphia, next Friday and Saturday. There will be thirteen events.

An automobile carnival under the auspices of the Atlantic City Automobile club, the feature of which will be three days of racing on the beach of that resort, will be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Thursday the automobilists will be attracted to the Brighton Beach race track where a twenty-four-hour speed contest will be started. A large number of cars have been entered.

PIRATES EASY FOR THE FINNS

Walters, New Slabman, Blanked Shreveport Handily at Debut Yesterday.

Shreveport, La., August 4.—Manager Finn, of the Little Rock team, tried out his new pitcher, Walters, today, and he shut the locals out. Graham was wild in the first, and poor support in addition, allowed the visitors to score four runs in the first inning. Poor playing during the game allowed six more runs for the visitors. Score:

MUCH WORRY OVER MEN IN THE OUTLAW LEAGUE

The new Atlantic League, the outlaw organization, is rocking along pretty well, but what the team managers are up against is evidenced by the following from The Elizabeth, N. J., Daily Journal:

"Talk about 'uneasy lies the head that wears a crown,'" said the manager of an Atlantic League club yesterday, "it isn't in it with the head that's running a team in an 'outlaw' league. When the manager of one of these teams goes to bed at night, he doesn't know how many of his star players will be on the job in the morning. No sooner does one of the players of the Atlantic League show first-class form than he receives tempting offers from other of the minor leagues, or one of the major organizations. If the player decides to accept the offer, there is no way on earth that his manager can prevent him from jumping his contract.

"Of course we sometimes hold back two weeks' pay on some of our best players, but that does not amount to anything because the manager of the club that wants the player makes that good. When an 'outlaw' team gets hold of a good ambitious player who develops into a star, the tempter comes along and tells him that he cannot afford to waste his time playing for an 'outlaw' club, and that if he does his chances will be ruined forever. He puts it in such a way that the player generally yields.

"There is one fine exception to this, though, and that is Wagner, of the Elizabeths. No young player has ever forged to the front, and received so many flattering offers as has Wagner. But he has turned a deaf ear to all propositions to jump.

"But talk about players jumping in a night, there was Ziegler, of the Readings, who was a good pitcher and outfielder. He played last year with the Kane City Club, of the Inter-State League, and was taken on the Readings at his own request. On the very day that Reading had on one of its hardest games and Ziegler's services were most needed, his manager learned that on the night previous he had jumped to the Tri-State League.

Circus Folks Most Moral.

(From Everybody's Magazine.)

Notwithstanding the absence of the artificial safeguards that a conventional society has ordained, circus performers are, as a class, the most moral folk on the face of the earth. A circus man expressed the fact in this way:

"For two hundred years there has not been a domestic scandal nor a divorce among us when both husband and wife were from recognized circus families. In every case where there has been a scandal, either one or the other has been an outsider."

RIOT OF RACES OVER BASEBALL

Whites and Blacks Battle Over National Games.

FIFTY PERSONS WOUNDED

Two of Those Injured Will Die. Strong Force of New York Policemen Required to Cope With the Mob.

New York, August 4.—The fighting element among the whites and blacks in the vicinity of 136th street and Fifth avenue lined up according to their race and began to settle a baseball dispute. When the game ended, fifty persons required medical aid, and two will die. Several men fled, and it took several policemen to settle the mob. John McCue and Matthew Murtha, 35, received fractured skulls and were removed to a hospital in a dying condition. The injuries of others ranged from broken noses to serious razor cuts.

The trouble started at a ball game, where a white man and a negro had made a wager and subsequently quarreled over the settlement, and a general row followed. Every sort of weapon was used, and for blocks the constantly augmented mob surged, while the police reserves from eight precincts hammered away with their clubs. Occupants of homes along the line of battle hurled every piece of crockery or furniture that could be spared down upon the heads of the rioters with impartiality. Even women and children joined the fray. It was two hours before the police controlled the situation.

RALPH PETERS IN LIMELIGHT

Charged With Death of Man Killed by His Railway.

Atlantans will read with interest the fact that Ralph Peters, president of the Long Island railway, has been charged by the coroner's jury of New York with the death of Dr. Edward J. Gallagher, who was killed by a Long Island train at St. Albans, L. I., week before last.

Mr. Peters is an Atlanta man, the son of the late Richard Peters, and has many friends in this city. He is a brother to E. C. Peters, Mrs. Nellie Peters Black and Mrs. H. M. Atkinson. He went north years ago, and is one of the most conspicuous railroad men in the country.

The verdict of the coroner's jury came as a great surprise in view of the fact that a good deal of the testimony was directly in favor of the railroad.

The district attorney has stated that in spite of the coroner's verdict he will not prosecute Mr. Peters and John C. McCrea, general superintendent of the road.

The case attracted a good deal of attention in New York in view of the fact of the prominence of the men charged with responsibility of Gallagher's death, as well as the unusual verdict of the jury in holding higher officials responsible for the acts of lesser officials.

A WISE BRITON.

He Half Suspected at the Start the Feathers Weren't Edible.
(From The Brooklyn Eagle.)

A Brooklyn man who entertained an English relative tells this without the quiver of an eyelid:

"'My cousin from London reached New York last summer, along with a hot wave. The crowds were deep before the soda water fountains on lower Broadway. He remarked that he did not comprehend how Americans could swallow that 'nasty slush.'

"'A mere preference,' I explained. 'We have many curious examples of that kind in this country. One of the most remarkable evidences of insatiable appetite for froth rather than substance is that of the American poultry lover who daily advertises in our New York papers for 1,000 feather beds. As you may well imagine, he is said to have entirely lost his taste for the flesh of the fowl!"

"'Oh, really!' exclaimed the Englishman in quiet surprise. Nothing more was said till nine months later, when I opened my mail one day and found a marked copy of The London Times, which he had sent to me. He called my attention to this extract in an article on mob rule and lynching in America: 'It can hardly be possible that the supply of tar and feathers in the United States will be sufficient at the rate the mobs are covering the bodies of the poor wretches who are tortured and humiliated before they are drawn and quartered or burned at the stake.'

"'I fancy you will see your error after reading this,' he wrote. 'It is quite plain the man wanted the beds for another purpose and not, as you believe, to eat.'"

Absentminded.
(From The Columbus Dispatch.)

She was an exceedingly dainty little woman, who was taking a very great interest in the welfare of the convicts when she was being shown through the penitentiary the other day. Guard O'Brien was along when she happened to speak to one of the prisoners. "I am so sorry for you," she remarked in a tender tone of voice. "Of course you will be very thankful when the time comes for you to leave this dreadful place."

"No," retorted the man. "I'd a sight rather stop here where I am." The little woman almost collapsed.

"Isn't it strange?" she asked, turning to the guard. "I had no idea the prisoners were so contented. What was the poor fellow's offense?"

The guard concealed a covert grin. "He was just a little absentminded, that was all," followed the grin.

"Absentminded!" exclaimed his astonished interrogator.

"Yes, madam," politely replied O'Brien. "He persisted in forgetting he was married, and now when his time is up he has two wives awaiting him on the outside."

The woman could not deny that the convict had sufficient reasons to be contented with his present lot.

A Pleasant Frolic.

After the dissipated Duke of Wharton had been narrating his frolics Dean Swift said to him: "My lord, let me recommend one more to you. Take a frolic to be good. Rely upon it, you will find it the pleasantest frolic you ever engaged in."

APALACHICOLA'S GREAT GROWTH

RESUMING OLD-TIME PLACE

Wonderful Strides Being Made by Apalachicola — Completion of New Railroad Creates the Dawning of a New Commercial Prosperity.

Apalachicola, Fla., August 4.—(Special.)—This Middle Florida gulf port and city of Apalachicola is about to resume its old-time ante-bellum prestige, when it was the third cotton port and market on the southern coast of the United States.

In those palmy days, the Chattahoochee valley from Columbus to the gulf, and southwest Georgia from Albany down the valley of the Thronateeska, all poured their cotton, tobacco and other agricultural products into Apalachicola for shipment to New York, and other portsAmerican and foreign. Apalachicola was a busy city in those days, and continued so for some time after the civil war, until the railroads began tapping the rivers, diverting her trade to Savannah and other ports, thus practically killing her commercial prosperity.

For the past thirty years the town has, in a manner, been kept together by several saw-mills and the timber industry. The fish and oyster trade has, in a manner, been largely developed. But an era of prosperity has just now dawned upon the old town. The Apalachicola Northern railroad, running north 80 miles to River Junction, where it connects with the Atlantic Coast Line, the Seaboard Air Line, and the Louisville and Nashville railroads, has just been completed. The road runs through a finely timbered and agricultural country, and it is thought that the saw milling industry alone will make it a paying proposition from the start.

There has been no regular schedules put on this road yet, owing to the non-arrival of engineers, passenger coaches and other rolling stock necessary to that end. It is expected, however, that the road will be in full operation by the first of September.

This is one of the most substantially built roads in the south. The rails are of the heaviest, and the road-bed is in superb condition.

Another great improvement and public necessity in this old city is a thoroughly modern and up-to-date hotel, the Franklin, which was opened to the public only last week. Mr. B. H. Beverly is the lessee, and Mr. H. L. Daniels, a Georgia hotel man, long identified with the business in Savannah, Atlanta, and Indian Springs, is the manager. The Franklin will become an important factor in Apalachicola's present and future advancement.

Apalachicola and the adjacent islands of the bay present many featurese of interest, for the seeker after rest and recreation and pleasure. The waters abound with all kinds of fish, and the woods are plentiful of game. For invalids, in view of the salubrious climate, the town is a splendid retreat and sanatorium.

St. Vincent's Island, a short distance from the city, has been purchased from the company, of which General J. P. Alexander, of Georgia, was the head, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, the famous patent medicine millionaire, of Buffalo, N. Y., who is making of it a vast game preserve. He is just now putting very many improvements on the island. He will doubtless, also, make it a great winter resort and sanitarium for northern invalids.

Apalachicola is said to be nearer the Panama canal than any other gulf port, and being the entrepot of that great system of rivers, the Chipola, Apalachicola, Chattahoochee and Flint, in all upwards of 2,000 miles of river transportation extending into Middle Georgia, she naturally demands of the federal government sufficient means to give her the deep water necessary to her commercial development and prosperity. Two hundred thousand dollars will deepen West pass sufficient to meet the exigeniece of the increased trade consequent upon the completion of the Panama canal, and the people are going to work with the proper view to accomplish it. One of their best efforts in this direction will be the election of a congressman from Apalachicola to represent the third district of Florida in the next congress, believing that one so elected—right from the place needing the national help—would do more to accomplish the result expected than anything else, and with that view they will present the name of their favorite son, Hon. J. F. C. Griggs, before the next congressional convention.

Mr. Griggs is a first cousin of Congressman James M. Griggs, who has so long and ably represented the second district of Georgia. The Georgia Griggs is specially interested in the improvement of the rivers emptying into Apalachicola bay, two of which run through his congressional district. Therefore, with a congressman at the port to act with the one up country, the people dow nhere believe that something will be doing on the deeep water proposition shortly thereafter.

Another help to Apalachicola has been the inauguration of a new line of river steamboats from Bainbridge to Apalachicola by Colonel John W. Callahan, a great wholesale grocery merchant and naval stores king of the former city. The Callahan line consists of three steamers at present, and it seeks to control the river trade from Bainbridge on the Flint, and Columbia, Ala., on the Chattahoochee to the gulf at Apalachicola. John W. Callahan is a young, energetic, progresive and always lucky man. He has been one of the greatest propeling forces for the advancement of Bainbridge for several years past, and now he is spreading his industrial capital, ability and energy over three states.

The steamer Gertrude, of the Callahan line, is on the ways here, as she is being refitted with an entirely new hull. She will also be provided with new and powerful enginees, while her cabin will be thoroughly overhauled, so that when she takes her place in the line October 1st, she will be practically a brand-new steamboat.

HAVE NEGRO SURROUNDED.

He Shot and Probably Fatally Injured Young Man.

Athens, Tenn., August 4.—Charles Pierce, brother of Chief of Police John Pierce, was shot and probably fatally wounded by John C. Rockett, a young negro, at midnight last night. The shooting took place at the Southern depot, where Pierce was seeing some ladies off on the train, and was without apparent provocation.

After the shooting the negro escaped, pursued by a mob. He is now surrounded in a swamp north of the city and there is little or no chance of his escape. Should young Pierce die, which outcome is considered inevitable, his slayer probably will be lynched when captured.

DEATH COMES TO BOB BRUCE

He Was the Mascot for Many Organizations in the City.

Bob Bruce, son of A. C. Bruce, the architect, died at Norcross Sunday morning at 1 o'clock. The body was brought to the city later in the day, and was carried to the home of the parents at 327 North Boulevard. Mr. Bruce has from infancy suffered from an affliction of the spine. He had been in bad health for some time, but though his friends realized that the end was not far off, the death came as a surprise, as Mr. Bruce had gone to Norcross for rest, and was apparently in better health.

Perhaps no young man in private life in the city was known and loved by so large a circle of friends. Mr. Bruce's engaging wit and genial personality endeared him to all with whom he came in contact. Years ago he went as mascot for the Atlanta Rifles to Kansas City on the trip on which the company captured a prize of $3,000. He was the general favorite of the company.

Later, when he returned from Washington, D. C., at which place he had been in the employ of the Southern railroad, he was met at the train by a number of his friends, who carried him bodily to his home. Of late he has been in the office of Comptroller General Wright. At the capitol he was especially popular, being on familiar terms with everybody, from Governor Terrell to the elevator boy.

The funeral services will be held at the residence of the parents this afternoon at 4 o'clock, interment following at Oakland. Members of the Atlanta Rifles will act as pallbearers.

12 MORE DAYS AND SESSION ENDS

the source of revenue diminished the appropriation bill will show close on to $671,000 to be provided for in special appropriations, in addition to the regular appropriations of the state.

Five Mills Necessary.

Chairman Murphy Candler stated in the house last week that in order to meet the demands it would be necessary to tax all taxable property the full limit of five mills.

Each of the special and general appropriation clauses will come in for its full share of attention when that bill is put upon its passage.

When the Joe Hill Hall anti-pass bill, and the substitute offered by the minority of the railroad committee comes up for discussion, by special order on Tuesday morning a debate, which will be exceeded only by the memory of the prohibition filibuster, will ensue.

This fight had its inception in the railroad committee room, where Mr. Hall made the charge that the administration forces had sent it out that he was not to have the credit of the passage of the anti-pass bill.

His bill prohibits the uses of passes, franks or corporation courtesies by any city, county or state officer or nominated candidate.

The substitute is a state application of the national free pass law, which prohibits passes to all except railroad employees.

The committee first reported favorably the substitute. This was recommitted to the committee, and on the second trial the Hall bill was reported favorably by the committee by a single vote majority.

This shows the division of sentiment in regard to the two measures.

Both the Hall bill and the substitute have been printed and distributed among the members for reference in the debate on Tuesday. It is expected that two days will be consumed in debate before a vote is taken on these measures.

Disfranchisement Measure.

An effort has been made by Mr. Williams, of Laurens, author of the administration disfranchisement bill, which was reported favorably by the constitutional amendment committee, to have that bill set for a special order for Wednesday. A resolution to this effect was introduced Saturday, and sent to the rules committee, and should be reported upon today.

This bill is going to be the subject of heated and protracted debate. Mr. Hall, of Bibb, has a substitute, which he is going to offer, as has Mr. Payton, of Worth.

Mr. Hall declined to discuss his measure before the committee, declaring that it would be of no use, but has given notice that he will make a determined effort to have it supplant the Williams' bill in the house.

The alleged ownership of the Central of Georgia by the Southern railroad is a question which will probably come up before the house this week, by special order, when the resolution by Mr. Hardeman, of Jackson, calling for the creation of a commission to probe this charge is acted upon. The railroad committee reported the measure favorably, and in addition asked the house for a special order on the resolution. A report from the rules committee, giving it a special order today, is due this morning.

The Candler bill, which seeks to enlarge the powers of the railroad committee, from three to five members, and which was cut down to three by the senate, has been reported upon favorably, but has not been assigned a day for a hearing.

With the house calendar in this crowded condition it hardly seems possible for action upon them this year, unless the state is put to the expense of an extra session, which is already being talked of in certain quarters.

Dr. White will occupy the pulpit during the entire month of Auguet, and will give four Sunday night sermons on unique and startling subjects.

The first of the series was delivered last night, the text being: "The Royal Cripple."

CAMP MEETINGS NEAR GRIFFIN

FOUR IN PRESENT MONTH

During the Month of August Four Camp Meetings Will Be Held In the Griffin District of the Southern Methodist Church.

Griffin, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—Four camp meetings will be held in the Griffin district of the Southern Methodist church during the month of August. The first is the Holiness camp-meeting, which will open at the camp ground near Indian Springs on August 8th and continue ten days, closing on the night of the 18th. Many prominent preachers will be present and a great revival is expected. The attendance last year was the largest since the establishment of the camp ground. The music will probably be conducted by Charlie D. Tillman, of Atlanta.

At Bluff Springs.

The annual campmeeting at Bluff Springs camp ground, Pike county, will commence Friday before the second Sunday in August and will close the following Tuesday. Dr. Joel T. Daves, presiding elder of the Griffin district, has appointed several able preachers to conduct the meeting and will probably be present on Sunday to preach the 11 o'clock sermon. A large attendance is expected this year.

At Mt. Zion.

The annual meeting at Mt. Zion this year will open Friday night before the fourth Sunday in August, and will close the following Wednesday night. The proceeding will be done by Revs. John S. Jenkins, Nath Thompson, J. O. A. Grogan, J. D. Snider and W. H. Speer. Dr. and Mrs. M. H. Hamill, of Nashville, Tenn., two of the most successful Sunday school workers in the world, and Miss Daisy Davies, of Atlanta, will attend the meeting and will doubtless be heard several times on subjects of interest.

A beneficial meeting is being arranged and many improvements are being made on the camp ground property.

At Shingleroof.

The annual meeting at Shingleroof, in Henry county, will begin on Friday night before the fourth Sunday in August, continuing until Tuesday following. Among the preachers who will be heard there are Revs. J. Q. Watts, S. P. Wiggins, C. V. Weathers, J. M. Sewell and Dr. Joel T. Daves.

ROOSEVELT RULES FOR DOMINGO.

President Makes Financial Regulations for Black Republic.

Washington, August 4.—The president has made a set of regulations for the government of the customs receivership established in Santo Domingo under the terms of the convention of February 8, 1907. It is provided that the accounts of the general receiver shall be rendered to the contaduria general of the Dominican republic and the state department at Washington and referred for verification to the bureau of insular affairs which is given immediate supervision and control of the receivership. Every precaution is taken to guard against irregular practices and heavy bonds are required while provision is made for the most rigid and systematic inspection of the machinery of collection, and for complete vouchers of expenditures.

An important regulation is number 12, which provides that pending the completion of the "financial arrangement" for the floating of a loan to pay off the creditors of Santo Domingo, the general receiver is to continue, in a new account, to make the same disposition of the funds received by him as heretofore. Under the old arrangement, whereby fifty-five per cent of the Dominican revenues were deposited in the National City Bank of New York for the benefit of foreign creditors, a fund of about $3,000,000 has been accumufated which cannot be distributed until the new arrangement is perfected. Under the new treaty the Dominican government is to receive a lump sum of $100,000 monthly out of its collection for its maintenance. It is stated that this is so much more advantageous for that government than the old arrangement of forty-five per cent of the collections that the Dominican government would be about $200,000 better off had it originally been placed upon the new basis.

Bigham Will Recover.

Macon, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—Eugene Bigham, the negro, who was shot while he was escaping through an alley last Friday morning with a box of tobacco, which he had stolen in the store of H. D. Adams & Co., has improved at the city hospital to such an extent that it is now believed by the surgeons and physicians that he will recover. Bigham was shot by Patrolman R. E. Glenn after the negro had refused to stop as ordered. The officer has not had a hearing upon the suspension which was made temporary by Chief Conner.

Centuries of Tenancy.
(From The London Standard.)

A Dorsetshire farmer writes as follows to the Standard: "A recent legal complication led me to look up the records of my family, and I think the result will interest your readers.

"I am a tenant farmer in this county, where my family has been settled for many centuries, and I knew that our connection with our present holding had existed for many generations. Through hunting up records for the case I referred to, however, I became sufficiently interested to undertake a more serious search than I had at first intended.

"I found that my ancestors have held practically the same tract of land since the year 1604. Beyond that I could find nothing, but very possibly if records existed I think they would show that we were connected with the place even before that date."

Cats as Retrievers

"It is claimed," said a Chicago antiquary, "that cats may be trained as retrievers—trained to swim to your slain birds and bring them back to you in their mouths. The thing sounds incredible, but look here."

He held up the photograph of an ancient Egyptian painting. Men with spears rode on the Nile. In some of the boats large cats sat on their haunches in the stern, while toward others several cats swam with dead birds in their mouths.

"This picture," said the antiquary, "proves that the Egyptians used cats for hunting dogs. If they, why not we? The original of the picture is in the British museum, where there are also several pieces of carving that display the cat in the role of a retriever."

The German and the Fatherland.

A German always remains a German. He respects and loves his fatherland, although isolated and separated from it by boundless oceans and vast continents. A German heart always remains true to the country where it first commenced to beat until it is silenced by death. As a rule, to which there are few exceptions, a man who is loyal to the country of his birth will be loyal to the country of his adoption.—Dr. Nicholas Senn.

SOUTHERN TIRED OF ALABAMA WAR

Railroad Ready to Make a Break for Cover.

DIRECTORS ARE IN SESSION

And It Is Reported That They Will Order the Case That Caused the Trouble Withdrawn From the United States Court.

Montgomery, Ala., August 4.—(Special.)—It is reported here tonight that the Southern railway may recall the case removed to the federal court from Talladega, and thus relieve the situation resulting in the sacrifice of the right of the company to do business in the state. It is said that the action at Talladega was hastily taken, and that it would be recalled if satisfactory arrangements could be made.

The directors of the Southern are expected to announce their decision by tomorrow. They have been in session in New York for a couple of days, it is reported, and will make an announcement of what will be done soon.

MANY ATTEND THE SERVICES

Interest at High Point in Tabernacle Meetings at Macon.

Macon, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—The meetings at the tabernacle on First street have been conducted for a week under very favorable circumstances and there are indications that interest will be kept up to a high point. Large numbers of people have attended the services. Comforts have been provided so that the visitors are well cared for during their attendance.

H. H. Starr, Sr., Dies at Macon.

Macon, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—H. H. Starr, Sr., aged 65 years, and one of the best known citizens of the community, died at the family home on New street yesterday evening, after a lingering illness of several weeks. There was a general breakdown, and the members of the family and his friends had known of the approaching end several days.

The funeral occurred this afternoon at the residence, Rev. O. R. Bourne officiating. The pallbearers were chosen from Syracuse lodge, Knights of Pythias, of which order he was a member. Interment occurred in Riverside cemetery.

For many years Mr. Starr was a cotton merchant in Macon, having operated under the firm name of Starr & Ruan. He went five years ago to Mississippi, where he engaged in the oil-mill business, and only returned to Macon a year ago. He was a veteran of the civil war, serving through the struggle as a member of Nelson's battery in Jackson's artillery. He was wounded four times and proved a valiant fighter.

He is survived by his wife and three children—H. H. Starr, Jr., and William L. Starr, captain of the Floyd Rifles, and Mrs. Alys Starr Webb.

Miss Bothwick Takes Vacation.

Macon, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—Miss Margaret Bothwick, superintendent of nurses at the city hospital, left tonight for Asbury Park and several other northern and eastern cities on her annual vacation. She will visit her old Canadian home several days before returning to her duties in the hospital here.

Be Sure to Get What You Ask For.

THERE is a Reason—

Why the Good People of America buy Cascarets as Fast as the Clock Ticks.

Every second some one, somewhere, is Buying a little Ten-Cent Box of Cascarets.

1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6—60 times to the Minute, 60 Minutes to the Hour, 3600 Boxes an an Hour, 36,000 Boxes a Day of Ten Hours, 1,080,000 Boxes a Month, and then some.

Think of it—220,000 People take a Cascaret tablet each day. Millions use Cascarets when necessary.

The Judgment of Millions of Bright Americans is Infallible. They have been Buying and Taking Cascarets at that rate for over Six years.

* * *

Over Five Millions of Dollars have been Spent to make the merits of Cascarets known, and every cent of it would be lost, did not sound merit claim and hold the constant, continued friendship, Patronage and Endorsement of well-pleased people year after year.

There is also a Reason—

Why there are Parasites who attach themselves to the Healthy Body of Cascaret's success—Imitators, Counterfeiters, Substitutors.

They are Trade Thieves who would rob Cascarets of the "Good Will" of the people, and sneak unearned profits, earned and paid for by Cascarets.

A Dishonest Purpose means a Dishonest Product and a Disregard of the Purchasers' Health or Welfare.

Beware of the Slick Salesman and his ancient "Just as Good" story that common sense refutes.

Cascarets are made only by the Sterling Remedy Company, and put up in metal box with the "long-tailed C" on the cover. They are never sold in bulk.

TOURING IN NORTH CAROLINA. NO. 2.

My last was written in the stuffy, close, warm reading and writing room of a hotel in Monroe after a day of mingled labor and pleasure spent at Huntersville, Mecklenberg county. There were good facilities for separate meetings of the men and the women during the morning and a jont meeting in the afternoon, and sandwiched between was the traditional picnic dinner, with friend chicken, chicken pie, roast beef and pudding, fruit pies and cakes galore, with pickles, both sweet and sour, and other accessories to fill up the cracks and make the feast complete. This editor spoke twice to about one hundred men who seemed to listen with an eagerness that was evidenced by numerous pointed and pertinent questions. At the afternoon meeting I listened to an excellent offhand address delivered to the joint meting by Mrs. Sue Hollowell, of Goldsboro, N. C., followed by a very interesting talk from Miss Moore on the subject of "Birds and Their Relation to Man." The topic was a novel one to most of the audience.

On the 26th our party was at Mooresville, Iredell county, which was the extreme northern limit of the present tour. This is well up in the Piedmont region, corresponding pretty closely to the country north and east of Atlanta, although a little farther north, and you not equally elevated. Saturday night and Sunday found the whole of two sections of the workers in Charlotte to rest up, "get good" and be ready for the nxt day's work, the scene of which was at Concod, the county seat of Cabannis county. Here we were greeted by a large number of the "horny-handed" from the country round about and the meeting proved a satisfactory success. We spent Monday night again at Charlotte and on Tuesday put in a day's work at Hickory Grove, Mecklenberg county, some eight miles from Charlotte. Here we found a large, well-built church, but were not permitted to hold an agricultural meeting within its sacred portals! But the "arbor," erected for campmeeting purposes and a nearby school building afforded an abundance of room and free circulation of air and the occasion was quite a success. There were present quite a large number of men, women and children, and a splendid "spread" was laid on the extemporized tables. Again we hied ourselves, in the splendid livery "rig" that had carried us out in the early morning (eight miles), back to Charlotte, which had become, in a sense, our home. Today, July 31, four members of the previous day's party went six miles to Sardis church in the southern part of Mecklenberg county making three district meetings held in this famous old county. In some respects, this was the most satisfactory meeting we had held during the two weeks. We had opportunity to see the country from the well-cushioned seats of our excellent surry, with two fine horses as the motive power. It reminded me of the best portions of Greene, Madison and Morgan counties in Georgia. The soil is mostly of a deep chocolate-colored loam. The crops—especially of corn—were in very fine and flourishing condition, although the cotton is late—much later than usual.

There were evidences on every hand of the presence of an intelligent, prosperous and contented population. I noted particularly several points: (1) There is a large and very handsome brick church, modern in its shape and appointments, just about completed at a cost of $15,000—certainly a sight not usually seen "away out" in the country. (2) Among the hundreds of vehicles that had brought the three to four hundred people together I did not see a single ramshackled farm wagon; indeed, not a farm wagon of any sort, excepting an Old Hickory that had brought a ton of ice (more or less) and several boxes of lemons, sugar, ice cream fixings, etc., for the greater pleasure of the people. The pleasure conveyances were of high character, the horses and mules fine and in good condition. (3) Moreover, the people were good looking and many of them cultured and refined, and the dinner was all that could be desired.

It should be remembered that Mecklenburg county has a most unique and glorious history. It was in Charlotte, the staid old county site, that the sturdy farmers and other citizens of the county met in May, 1775, over a year in advance of the first glorious Fourth of July, 1776, and passed what is now known as the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence of Great Britain. It was in or near Charlotte that Lord Cornwallis and his red coats fell into what he afterwards called a "hornets' nest." Roads, said to have been cleared through the forests by Cornwallis' army, are still pointed out, and an aged poplar tree is said to have been used by that renowned general for a hitching post.

Now what is said above about the people around Sardis church applies with almost equal force to most parts of the seotion covered by the five or six days' travel.

In addition to the lady members of our two parties, which several times swapped individuals, were Mrs. H. L. Stevens, of Raleigh; Mrs. Walter Grimes, Wake county, North Carolina; Miss Mae Card, of Raleigh. I was deeply impressed by the earnestness, sincerity, eloquence, and ability evidenced by these ladies in the work to which they are devoting themselves. I could but ardently wish that other southern states, including my own native state, could enjoy the advantage of such a corps of competent instructors and helpers in the upward and forward development of our country people and our country homes. The men of the parties were Dr. Tait Butler, of the state department of agriculture and director of farmers' institutes; Dr. L. F. Stevens, North Carolina Agricultural college; Frnklin Sherman, Jr., United States department of agriculture; Professor C. M. Conner, Agricultural college of North Carolina; J. A. Conover, United States department of agriculture; Dr. Adam Fisher, local veterinary surgeon, of Charlotte. Each of these gentlemen is thoroughly trained and equipped for the work appointed for them. Lastly, there has not been heard, in a single instance, the voice of a politician, nor a single vote-catching or self-seeking speech.

Tonight, July 31, ends my first two weeks' tour and I go to Jamestown to rest for four days, then return and take up another two weeks' engagement, commencing Monday, August 5.

SCHRADER GRASS (RESCUE GRASS.)

W. L. Dick, Ramer, Ala.—I inclose a letter found in an old Southern Cultivator, which you will please read and send me some information in regards to this grass. Where I can get the seed, where to plant it, etc. If this grass excells Johnson grass it is a wonderful hay-maker. Let me thank you in advance.

Answer: The grass described in the printed extract sent is also known as Brown's Imioloides, and the common name is "rescue grass." It has been known and cultivated in the south, to a limited extent, for many years, and I have long been familiar with and have grown it. What Mr. Tillman writes about it in the letter sent me agrees in the main with my own experience and observation. Unfortunately the seeds of "cheat" (which belongs to the same genus) have been extensively exploited under the name of "rescue." I have often written about Brown's Imioloides in this department. It was formerly known as "Daniel's rescue," because he called attention to it (if he did not introduce it) many years ago.

(1.) SACHALIN. (2.) DEEP, SANDY SOIL. (3.) ASPARAGUS.

G. D. P., Rasindale, Bladen County, North Carolina.—On the strength of being a subscriber to The Atlanta Constitution I am presuming to write you this and you will find inclosed a part of a stem and a few leaves attached which I am sending you and asking you to name. I can't find it in any of the seed catalogs. A merchant, an old gentleman living at this place, has a single plant (from which the inclosed was clipped) which he claims to be a fine forage plant, and as it seems to grow somewhat luxuriantly here and cattle seem to like it, if it is worth anything as a forage plant I would like to learn the proper name for it and find out where the seed of same can be obtained. Mr. George C. McDougal, the gentleman on whose place it is growing, knows it by the name of "sachaline" or "sacaline." I think it would probably make a sufficient growth on this land to produce a satisfactory forage crop should it prove of value as such.

(2.) I would also appreciate any suggestions or advice you could give me as to what would probably be the best paying crop to plant on my land, which I will describe as long leaf pine, wiregrass, sand ridge, pretty well set with blackjack, oak, postoak and quite a lot of small-sized hickory. There is no clay anywhere near the surface, as I can dig a hole as far as I can reach with a long-handled shovel with no other pressure than my hands. During the wettest spells of weather we even have the water stand within 3 feet of the top of the ground. Do you think I could grow alfalfa successfully here? Wild indigo grows spontaneously and somewhat luxuriantly. Any information or suggestion you can give me as to crops for success and fertilizers for same on the soil described will be highly appreciated.

(3.) Everything I read on asparagus says "use plenty of stable manure." This I have not, nor can get it. How would it do to open up trenches as per usual instructions, put in roots and then fill up trenches with wood mould, consisting of pinestraw, oak leaves and hickory leaves, and then sprinkle a liberal supply of kainit on this, covering the whole with plow later?

Answer: 1. The few leaves and piece of branch of the plant sent looks like sachalin, and as the gentlemen who has it knows it under that name it is doubtless that plant. Sachalin (or sagalin) is a plant belonging to the buckwheat family and was introduce dinto this country several years ago from the island of that name that lies off the coast of Russia, in Asia, one-half of which became a spoil of war to the Japs as a result of the late war between Russia and Japan. The plant was introduced with a great flourish of trumpets and seeds and sets were sold at enormous prices. I had a few plants of it. We now hear nothing more about it, and I presume it has "had its day." I destroyed what few plants I had, not finding it worthy of cultivation. It may be a desirable plant on some soils. I do not know of anyone who now sells seed of it.

2. Richardia scatera, or Mexican clover, might prove a satisfactory renovating and forage plant on the soil you describe. I do not know of whom seed can be had. The land is too poor for alfalfa. What do your neighbors grow on similar land? Cowpeas and oats would probably do, using 300 pounds acid phosphate, 344 pounds cotton meal, and 75 pounds muriate of potash on the oats, and 200 pounds acid and 50 pounds muriate on the peas.

3. It would not do at all unless thoroughly rotted. You would need to make the land rich with rotted vegetable matter and also with plant-food in the form of commercial fertilizers. The unrotted leaves would do harm, rather than good, until thoroughly rotted.

(1) SMUT, OR BLAST, IN OATS. (2) CURDY MILK.

H. H. Kinny, Hoschton, Ga.—(1) The Appler oats that I bought from S. M. Farrar, Haddock, Ga. (as per your recomendation) proved to be about 10 per cent smut or blast. I sowed them in open furrows, and they did well with this objection. Will they be worse next year? If so, give me the best and cheapest way to clean them, as I want them for seed.

(2) Also I want to know what to do for my cow. About two months ago her milk began to taste and smell old and rancid like an old milk rag. After a week or so she refused to eat for one day, and seemed dull and stupid, and lay around in the pasture all day, then the flow of milk almost stopped. After that she was hearty and seemed all right, but her milk became cloddy and stringy, changing from one teat to another, and in a short time she was dry. She is 7 years old, of scrub stock. Her calf is 8 months old, and she will drop calf in October. I feed her on cottonseed and cotton meal and hulls; have good pasture and fresh water. She seems to be healthy every way, and is in good condition. From this description can you diagnose her case, and tell me what is the matter and give me a remedy? Will it return with next calf? Enclosed find stamp for reply, and oblige.

Answer—1. The oats will have blast one year unless prevented, which is easy enough. Get one pint of formalin (drug store) for every fifty bushels of seed oats to be treated. Mix it in 50 gallons of water. Spread your seed oats 3 or 4 inches thick on a tight floor and sprinkle the liquid over them at the rate of one gallon to the bushel. Stir so as to wet the grain; let stand in a heap two or three hours. Then spread out and dry enough to sow well. This may be done just before sowing. Formalin will cost you 40 or 50 cents a pint. This treatment will destroy all the blast germs and you will have no glast next year.

2. Give the cow only pure, clean water to drink. Also give the cow 2 drams of bi-sulphite of soda once a day. If this doesn't cure it milk her three times a day and inject into each teat 2 drams of hyposulphite of soda dissolved in one pint of water after each milking. Not likely to return with next calf if pure water be provided.

FLEAS IN SAWDUST.

J. H. Robinson, Oswego, S. C.—My barn lot contains about forty or fifty loads of sawdust, which is infected with a great quantity of fleas. Can you advise me how to destroy them without removing the sawdust at this season?

Answer—I am not able to say, but suppose you sprinkle, or spray entire surface of the sawdust with kerosene oil and report results.

BULRISH. TO DESTROY.

J. J. A., Homer, Ga.—I have a piece of bottom land, about three acres, and have bermuda grass in it and I am using it for a pasture and the bullrush is about to take it. Can you tell me how to get rid of the bullrush? I will appreciate it very much. Hoping to hear from you by return mail, I am yours for success.

Answer—I know of no way to get rid of the bulrushes except to dry the land by under-draining it with blind ditches, for this weed grows only on wet, soggy land.

SICK COWS.

A. H., Victoria, Tex.—Will you please tell me what kind of a disease my cows have? They lie in a natural healthy position of rest for two or three days. They have no appetite. Can't get up and in three or five days die.

Answer—It is impossible to more than surmise what the disease may be from your exceedingly meager description. If the cow has just dropped a calf when attached, particularly if she is a fine cow and has had two or more calves, it is probably what is know nas "milk fever," which is fatal i nthe maojrity of cases unless given the air treatment very promptly. This consists in pumping her bag or udder full of air by means of eithe ra common bulb syringe or a bicycle pump, which must be scalded thoroughly in boiling water, or dipped in a per cent solution of carbolic acid and water. A cow with this disease lies on her breastbone with her head turned to her side and soon becomes blind and also unable to swallow anything, often dying without even an effort to rise to her feet.

OAT FERTILIZER.

James M. Duckett, Dahlonega, Ga.—What I want to know is this: Would 200 pounds of acid phosphate (16 per cent), 200 pounds of German kainit, 50 pounds of muriate of potash, 50 pounds of nitrate of soda, mixed with 1,500 pounds of stable manure, make a good fertilizer for wheat and oats? And if not will you please publish what will make a good one in The Constitution. I have sown poor land that I have just cut oats off of. Would it do to turn it under in September and sow fall oats on it again—I want to bring it up—or would you sow rye on it? Please answer in The Constitution, and oblige.

Answer—Your formula woull do fairly well for oats, but the following is the one that I have so often recommended:

Avcid phosphate (14 per cent)..	800 lbs.
Coton seed meal..	1,000 lbs.
Muriate of potash..	200 lbs.
	2,000lbs.

If the stable manure be real, good stable manure, you might reduce the cotton seed meal to 500 pounds and add 4 tons of stable manure. Why do you propose to use both muriate and kainit? Nitrate of soda, 50 to 75 pounds per acre may be applied next March as a top dressing.

For wheat:

Acid phosphate (14 per cent)..	1,000 lbs.
Cotton seed meal..	1,280 lbs.
Muriate of potash..	40 lbs.
	2,320 lbs.

And 5 0to 75 pounds muriate of soda as a top dressing in March.

POLYURIA OF MULE.

L. H., Cullman, Ala.—I have a mule that passes an unusual quantity of water. He at times has from four to five free passages within an hour. At such times his water is almost perfectly clear; at others it is clear at the beginning of the passage, but colors toward the last. For the last month about one-half of feed has been sheaf oats—the other corn and fodder, and this complaint has increased on him during this period. He is 4 years old; eats well, and so far as outward appearance goes, no one would suspect that there was anything wrong with him. Please tell me what the trouble is, and what to do for it.

Answer: The disease is called polyuria, the cause of which is not very well understood, but it usually follows a wet season when oats, straw, etc., have been more or less exposed to rains and are more or less musty. Possibly the cause is in your sheaf oats. Iodine is a specific for this disease, given in one-dram doses (1 teaspoonful). First dissolve the iodine in a little alcohol, then add one-half pint of water, or you may mix the iodine into a bolus with bread and sirup. Give a dose two or three times a day. Usually two or three doses will stop it. Follow this up with one dram of copperas in the morning and one dram of phosphate of calcium in the evening in a bran mash, and continue for two or three weeks.

SICK CALVES v. BLACK LEG.

B. A. Epting, Little Mountain, S. C.—Will you please tell us what was the matter with our cows? A calf 1 year old got sick last Friday, and died on Sunday; another 10 months old got sick on Wednesday and died on Friday. When first sick they appeared to be lazy or droopy, and would not move about much unless driven. Would lie down most of the time, look at one side and grunt; seemed stiff in the joints and would not eat nor drink anything. The bowels and urine seemed to be all right; didn't seem to be bloated, but the last day began to swell between and behind the front legs, and after dead the brisket was several times as large as usual. They had been in a large, swampy woods pasture for three months without any attention whatever, but they were in good fix. Have not seen any ticks on them. Tell us about the disease and remedy as soon as possible.

Answer: If your calves did not have and ticks on them then it is morally certain that it was not tick fever. But sometimes that disease will be induced by ticks that are present of such small size and numbers that they will not be noticed except by a close observer. I think it probable that it was "black quarter," or "black-leg," a disease that affects young cattle only. The symptoms as far as described and the character of the pasture (swampy) suggest that disease The swelling, which is always present, may be on the thigh, neck, shoulder, breast, flanks or rump, but never below the knee. When stroked or handled the tumor emits a peculiar crackling sound. There is practically no treatment that is effective, the large majority of cases dying within three days. Vaccinating with black-leg vaccine is supposed to protect if done in time. Under the name of "black-leggine" and other names it is advertised and sold.

"SPINAL TROUBLE" OF COWS IN ALABAMA.

T. O. Coker, Greenville, Ala.—We are losing a good many cattle in our country from some sort of spinal trouble. Their horns are hollow and their tails are hollow and the animal goes into paralysis before it dies. Can you place the disease and the cause? Would thank you to kindly suggest a redemy and to give the same through the columns of The Weekly Constitution.

Answer—All cow's horns are "hollow," and there is no such disease as "hollow tail." As you have not described the disease any further than to add that the animal "goes into paralysis before it dies," I am not able to say what it is. One accomplished veterinary surgeon says that he thinks most of the cases of so-called "hollow-horn" and "hollow-tail" are cases of tick fever. If a "good many cattle" are dying of the disease, it would be well to write to Dr. C. A. Cary, Auburn, Ala., your state veterinary surgeon. You should have said what sexes and what ages of cattle have the disease.

(1.) MILK FEVER OF COW. (2.) SMUT OF OATS.

W. P. Mc., Ohatchie, Ala.—(1.) Will you please tell me what to do for my cow. She has a calf 18 days old. At first she seemed weak in her hind parts, reeled as she walked; didn't eat hearty till yesterday. Now she eats all she can get; don't seem to hear good or see much. She acts foolish; her nose runs some and her hide is bound. I have ripped her hide loose, but it gets tight again. I have treated her for the so-called hollow horn. I feed her on cotton seed and corn meal, oats and green fodder. Please let me hear as soon as possible. She is a fine cow and I hate to lose her.

(2.) Is it safe to feed oats that has smut in them, and is there any preventive of the smut?

Answer—1. I cannot diagnose the case with confidence without a better description of the symptoms. I suspect that it is a case of milk fever, to which heavy milkers, with third or fourth calf, are liable, the disease coming on within a few hours to a week after calving. But this is only a surmise. By this time she has probably recovered. Cows with this disease usually die in a day or two, especially if taken within a day or so after calving. If a week elapses before they are taken, the chances are good for recovery. The remedy is to pump the teats full of air, using a sterilized bicycle pump in lieu of a better instrument.

2. There is no danger in feeding oats that contain smut. They preventive (given last week) is to wet the seed oats, using a gallon to each bushel of oats, with a weak dilution of one pint of formaline to 50 gallons of water. Have the oats spread out a few inches thick, springle the diluted formaline over them, stir well and let stand in a heap for 2 hours. Then dry and sow.

(1.) INDIGESTION OF MULE. (2.) EAR TROUBLE OF MULE.

C. J. Williams, Bennettsville, S. C.—(1.) I have a mule that is 6 years old and is as fat as she can be, but is let out on grass with the cattle. She will eat dirt where they make water. I give her all the salt she wants. She like to have died several times before I knew what was the matter. She has been at this habit for nearly two years.

(2.) I have another mule that I bought last spring that holds one ear straight. The man of whom I bougnt her said she got something in it, but I think it is a habit. She is all right except that ear; it spoils her looks. Any information will be highly appreciated. I am a reader of the Farm and Farmers' department.

Answer: (1) The obvious remedy for this dirty habit is to not permit the mule to run with the cattle. Since the animal is in fine condition, it would seem that there is no fault of indigestion demanding treatment. It may be only a bad habit.

(2) I presume that this mule has paralysis of the muscle of the ear, wherefore it is not able to hold it erect. I know of no treatment that would relieve it.
